

LBJ: DENIAL OF VOTE IS WRONG

-PETERSON PRESENTS NU BUDGET TO SENATORS- 'State Must Use Own Money To Move Ahead'

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Former Gov. Val Peterson said Monday that Nebraska's economy is "relatively stagnant" today, and that the state "will have to put up some of its own money if it wants to go forward."

Peterson told the Legislature's Budget Committee that one way to move ahead is to upgrade the University of Nebraska and give it sufficient funds to inaugurate a pre-program of excellence in the physical sciences.

The Hastings businessman, president of the NU Board of Regents, presented to the committee the University's $62.3 million operating budget request for the coming biennium and capital improvement plans totaling $35.8 million.

Revenue Bonds

Some $24.5 million in construction requests for the downtown campus would be financed largely through long-term revenue bonds backed by student fee income if the Legislature approves.

LB826, authorizing such a bond issue, was heard by the committee and held for later action.

The downtown campus construction program would allow the University to initiate its program of excellence in the physical sciences, Peterson said, and place the institution in a position to attract some $4 million in grants from the National Science Foundation.

"From an economic standpoint, it would produce a greater research capacity to attract and support sophisticated industry" in Nebraska, he told the lawmakers.

Today, Peterson said, "the state is barely holding its own."

Too Late

Nebraska is "too late for the space-age activity, but it should try to cash in on the next wave" of industrial and technological growth, he declared.

Among states which have been successful in attracting industry as a direct result of a university research center are North Carolina, Minnesota, Massachusetts and California, Peterson pointed out.

If the Legislature were to give a green light to the bond issue plan, the committee was told, the envisioned construction could be largely completed in four years. State support for the coming biennium would total $2.5 million.

Then, Peterson said, the University should move to "step up" its program in the life sciences followed by advancement in the social sciences and the humanities.

NU, he said, is "an excellent university, but I do not think it is a great university. We should strive for greatness or close it up. Let's go first class."

Included in the University's operating budget request for 1975-76 is a state general fund figure of $42.2 million, representing an increase of $10.5 million over the current biennium, or about 33.1%.

Student enrollment, Peterson said, will increase 2,000 in the next two years, "and that requires more staff and more of everything."

Yet, with prudent management, he noted, the cost per student per year has dropped from $919 in 1959-60 to $857 in 1963-64.

Doesn't Want Gamble

Sen. Clifton Batchelder of Omaha suggested that the University may be "too late to catch up in science development... and that's a gamble I am trying to keep our taxpayers away from."

The committee will begin to consider operating budget details when the hearing continues Tuesday.

In addition to the revenue bond-financed downtown campus construction program, the University is seeking $7.8 million in capital construction funds for the College of Medicine and $2.5 million for the East Campus in 1965-67.

Constitution's Dictate 'Cannot Be Disputed'

... 'WE SHALL OVERCOME' INJUSTICE

Washington (AP) — President Johnson declared Monday night that the time has come to guarantee every American the right to vote—to answer "the cries of pain, the hymns and protests of oppressed people."

In solemn, measured tones, the President called for broad, new legislation, and paid tribute to the Negro demonstrators he said have awakened America's conscience.

Top Priority

Johnson said he will put his proposals into the hands of Congress in legislative form Wednesday, and he awarded them No. 1 priority.

Before a joint session of House and Senate — a forum normally summoned for a presidential State of the Union address or in time of grave national crisis — Johnson declared:

"... It is wrong, morally wrong, to deny any of your fellow Americans the right to vote in this country."

Johnson was applauded time and again as he declared "the dignity of man and the destiny of democracy" are the real issues at stake.

Mind On Selma

Selma, Ala.—the troubled scene of Negro voter registration demands—was clearly on Johnson's mind as he talked of the legislation he wants. Monday, he said, "we had a good day there."

Johnson added men of all races have shown "impressive responsibility" there in recent days. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. led a column of nearly 4,000 people on a twilight memorial march for the slain Rev. James J. Reeb. A federal judge forbade police interference. There was none.

Alabama state troopers used tear gas and clubs to break up an attempted Selma-to-Montgomery civil rights march March 7. That touched off a nationwide wave of demonstrations which carried civil disobedience to the doorstep of the White House.

Civil rights attorneys are seeking a federal court order to permit the march.

Court, Congress, Heart Johnson said the battle for Negro rights should be fought in the courts and Congress and "in the hearts of men."

He added: "We must preserve the right of free speech and the right of free assembly. But the right of free speech does not carry with it the right to endanger the safety of others on a public highway."

That drew a round of applause. "We do have a right to protest," he added, "and a right under conditions that do not infringe the constitutional rights of our neighbors."

And the President said he will protect those rights as long as he is in the White House.

Vigil Kept Up

About 30 pickets, still an around-the-clock vigil in front of the White House, put down their civil rights placards and stopped to listen on transistor radios as Johnson spoke.

He called upon Republicans and Democrats, Americans of all faiths and colors, to join in the drive for equal voting rights.

"There must be no delay, no hesitation or no compromise with our purpose," the President said. Congressmen rose to their feet to applaud that declaration.

"We have already waited 100 years and more and the time for waiting is gone," he said in an address broadcast nationally by radio and television.

Nights And Days

Johnson asked Congress to work nights and weekends if that is necessary to pass the bill.

Johnson said the conscience of the nation is aroused—and the judgment of the world awaits America's response.

At one point, he chose the words of the civil rights anthem—"We Shall Overcome"—to declare that all citizens must overcome bigotry and injustice.

"There is no part of America where the promise of equality has been fully kept," he said.

Tribute To Negroes

His address included this tribute to the militant Negroes of the civil rights movement:

"The real hero of this struggle is the American Negro. His actions and protests—his courage to risk safety and even life—have awakened the conscience of the nation. His demonstrations have been designed to call attention to injustice, to provoke change and stir reform."

At one point, Johnson declared flatly: "There is no constitutional issue here. The command of the Constitution is plain."

Hardin Cites Enrollment Increase, NU's 'Unprecedented Opportunity'

University of Nebraska Chancellor Clifford Hardin Monday said the institution's request for new legislative authority to issue long-term revenue bonds to finance construction on the downtown campus was prompted by "an unprecedented increase in enrollment, and an unprecedented opportunity."

The request is contained in LB826, signed by 25 senators and subjected to a public hearing by the Budget Committee. No action was taken.

The bill would permit the University to issue bonds for about $20 million to $21 million to help finance some $24,545,500 in capital construction on the downtown campus.

If the proposal were approved, the bond issue would be backed by student fee income, amounting to about $2.5 million per biennium.

To Replace Fees

The University, in turn, would seek $2.5 million in additional funds per biennium to replace the student fees diverted from the operating budget for debt service.

NU Vice Chancellor Joseph Soshnik told the committee that the funds could conceivably be replaced entirely through a combination of the two.

Increased tuition would create problems for economically marginal students, the committee was told.

University officials said they are confident that the plan does not violate the state constitutional prohibition against public debt so long as they use only non-tax funds to retire the revenue bonds.

Will Jump

Some $16 million is now outstanding in dormitory revenue bonds, they noted.

Chancellor Hardin said that enrollment increased 2,500 in the present biennium, and will jump another 2,000 in the next. Each enrollment increase of 1,000 requires about 60 additional instructors and related facilities, he noted.

The construction program, Hardin said, will permit the University to grasp the opportunity of developing a physical science and engineering center which should attract large outside grants and "be a strong factor in Nebraska's economic growth."

LB826 was supported by Sen. Fern Hubbard, Orme of Lincoln, its chief sponsor; Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, and L. K. Emery, Lincoln, representing the Railroad Shop Crafts.

Carpenter said he would be willing to support a one-mill state property tax levy increase to finance the program, if necessary.

NU Board of Regents President Val Peterson of Hastings said the University would not use the bill as "an open-ended authorization," but would "expect to come back to the Legislature for authority" if it wished to use the plan to finance additional construction.

Opponents

Opposing the bill were Walter Vallis and E. R. Campbell, both of Lincoln.

Also heard and held was LB869, seeking to appropriate "frozen" soil and water conservation funds for use in the current biennium.

County Relief, Public Welfare Offices To Merge April 1st

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The merger of the Lancaster County Relief Office with the Lancaster County Division of Public Welfare was announced Monday effective April 1.

Lancaster County is the last county in Nebraska to have separate departments.

Commissioner Ralph Harlan and Welfare Director J. Earle Trabert explained that the consolidation of the departments is an "economy move" with a minimum annual savings to the county of between $25,000 and $30,000.

Trabert will head the consolidated operation with Miss Phyllis Samuelson, present relief director, as his administrative assistant.

Worked Together

Harlan, chairman of the Public Welfare Board, and Trabert said they had worked closely in a planned effort to bring about the consolidation without interrupting the services of either office.

The physical facilities and entire staff of the relief office will be moved to the Welfare Office at 1320 N. The combined operation will move to the new county convalescent hospital quarters when the hospital is completed next fall.

Trabert explained that with the new food stamp plan which will be implemented in May, the consolidation becomes vital since all applications must be certified through the welfare office.

More Funds Per Case The consolidation will result in more federal and state funds on a per case basis, with the new 90%-county-supported relief operation being reimbursed with 90% state and federal money in the combined operation.

The total relief budget for this year is $194,459, with the average monthly administrative costs for the 15 employees of between $5,000 and $6,000, as compared with an average of $7,863 paid out in direct relief.

Miss Samuelson noted that the relief office also handles institutional investigations, guardianships and estates, etc., which is reflected in the administrative costs but not in the money paid out in relief.

Trabert said Miss Samuelson would be directly in charge of these phases formerly handled by the relief office. For the month of February, the welfare office spent $18,012 for administrative costs and $131,274 for assistance, the latter of which the county financed approximately 10%.

The county now pays only 10% of the assistance and none of the administrative costs of the welfare office. Under the new setup, the county will finance 10% of the entire operation which will include the direct relief, formerly to tally financed with county money.

Trabert pointed out that although there will be no change in personnel, some of the present relief or welfare office employees may be used to administer the food stamp plan.

This, he noted, will also result in a savings to the county, since the federal government pays 60% of the salaries of persons dealing solely with the food stamp plan.

All the present relief office employees will be under the State Merit System under which the welfare employees are now hired.

Trabert said under the new setup the county will be financially and administratively better able to handle more cases.

KING LEADS MARCH MEMORIAL FOR REEB

Selma, Ala. (AP)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. led nearly 4,000 marchers, including hundreds of the nation's clergy, in a twilight street memorial Monday for a white minister whose mission here ended in death.

King marched at the head of a massive column to the Dallas County courthouse in tribute to the Rev. James J. Reeb, Boston clergyman fatally injured in a street attack by white men last week.

The huge demonstration — first organized mass march allowed here without police interference — was staged after a federal judge ordered police to permit it.

Telephoned Order

Police had been directed to allow the march in a telephoned order from U.S. District Judge Daniel H. Thomas at Mobile.

Marchers locked arms three abreast, and walked eight blocks from Brown's Chapel A.M.E. Church where King had eulogized Reeb in a memorial service.

"We gather here to rededicate our lives to the proposition that all men should have the right to vote," King said.

"We assemble here to reaffirm our conviction that racial segregation is evil."

Disturbance

A car horn kept blaring somewhere nearby. King ignored it.

About 200 white spectators gathered on the steps of the federal building across the street from the courthouse.

The huge throng moved to the courthouse, held a brief service and returned after an earlier march by about 500 persons was blocked by county and state police.

$3.3 Million Bond Issue Cleared For May Ballot

By BOB SCHREFF
Star Staff Writer

The City Council took formal action Monday placing the bond issue for the city's $3.3 million share of the proposed City-County building, at the 15th and O location, on the May 4 general election ballot.

City voters will be asked to either approve or disapprove the issuance of $3,500,000 of general obligation bonds if the city and county bond issues calling for construction of a jointly owned building at 16th and J fail to pass in the April 6 primary election.

Passage of both bond issues in April will rule out a vote on the location at 15 and O. The $3.3 million total for the May bond issue includes construction costs of $2.5 million and the city's $332,000 share of money needed for land acquisition.

The $1.6 million price for two blocks between N and P, 15th and 16th, was arrived at by an appraisal committee appointed by the Lincoln Board of Realtors at the request of the City Council and the Lancaster County Commissioners.

The committee consisted of Don Dixon, C. D. Kimball, William T. Kimball and Robert Walters.

Walters said that the preliminary estimate was based on an analysis of each individual property.

Mayor Dean Peterson praised

ed the committee, treading the appraisal "a very thorough job and well done. I have a great deal of confidence in these people," he said.

Appearing for Stanley Sands, owner of Standard Market at 16th and O, attorney Norm Krivosha told the council that the $1.6 million figure is "totally inadequate."

Krivosha said that the appraisers didn't take into account the loss of business, equipment and the improvement to the property. He estimated the value of Sands' property at that location to be more than $1 million.

Sands said "this appraisal is ludicrous. The appraisers are not qualified to assess the value of a business of a technical nature, such as ours."

Others also appeared to question the validity of the appraisal.

The $3.3 million total compares to the $2.8 million issue that the voters will decide on April 6. The resolution putting the bond issue on the May ballot also stipulates that the average interest rate on the bonds is not to exceed 3.75% and that the bonds shall be issued as needed and may be redeemed by the city at any time after 5 years from the date of their issuance.

Armada Blasts Munition Dump

... 100 MILES FROM HANOI

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP) — A powerful armada of U.S. Navy and Air Force planes blasted the Phu Qui ammunition depot only 100 miles south of Hanoi Monday. It was the sixth and possibly most punishing raid of a series launched against Communist North Viet Nam since Feb. 7. Results of the two-hour strike, intended to wipe out one source of supplies fed to the Viet Cong via the Ho Chi Minh Trail, officially were described as excellent.

February Job Gain Reported

Washington (AP) — Led by construction and manufacturing, all major industries showed job gains in February, the Labor Department said Monday.

Total payroll employment for the month was 59,560,000, a seasonally adjusted gain of 230,000 from January, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The actual increase in jobs was 24,000, but the Labor Department adjusts the figures to reflect expected seasonal trends.

Adjusted Figure

Thus, since all major segments of the economy either showed actual gains or less than usual decreases, the adjustment gave the larger figure.

Payroll employment includes all jobs except in agriculture, self-employed workers, family workers and domestic workers.

Other industries showing seasonal gains in addition to construction and manufacturing were transportation, public utilities, wholesale and retail trade, finance and real estate, service industries and state, local and federal government employment.

Deckers Return

About one fourth of the employment increase stemmed from the return to work of more than 50,000 longshoremen who had been in strike for the better part of two months.

Manufacturing employment, at 17.5 million, was at the highest February level since the Korean War.

Construction employment, although dropping slightly to 2.7 million, was at the highest level on record for February, a month that usually sees a much larger drop.

Secondary explosions spurted from the target area under rockets, bombs and 20MM cannon fire of the planes, which a military spokesman said totaled "100 plus." It was understood as many as 150 may have taken part.

30 Ordnance Buildings

Col. Hal I. Price, director of operations for the 2nd Air Division, said 30 buildings for ordnance storage were hit at Phu Qui.

Price reported the loss of one plane, a propeller-driven A1 that crashed short of a target on returning from the strike. Most of the raiders were jets. Price said damage from ground fire was light, though a considerable number of antiaircraft emplacements ringed the widely dispersed buildings. There was no aerial opposition.

Radio Hanoi declared three planes were shot down and many others damaged by ground fire. It made no mention of casualties or damage.

Most Northerly

The raid was the most northerly of the series.

U.S. authorities tightened restrictions on news coverage of the air activities and a spokesman said the new policy rules out disclosures on a number of subjects.

As to the precise number of planes, he would say only "100 plus." As to the takeoff points, he offered the generalization, "Southeast Asia."

ARGENTINA PERONISTS GAIN SEATS

Buenos Aires (UPI) — Communist-supported followers of Juan D. Peron scored impressive gains in Argentina's off-year congressional elections Monday and set up a new clamor for return of the ousted strong man.

The Communist-Peronist coalition won better than 36% of the popular vote and more than tripled its congressional strength in the Sunday balloting. The government with 29% of the vote just about held its own.

The election outcome made the Peronists a formidable force in the 132-member lower house of the congress. They gained 35 new seats to bring their chamber total to 52. Only the government with 71 seats in the chamber has bigger representation. The government lost one seat Sunday.

Peronist leader Carlos A. Bramuglia set up an immediate clamor for Peron's return from exile in Spain to "pacify" the country.

Some Foreign Students Can't Be Demonstrators

Moscow (AP) — The Soviet Union, stung by demonstrations which got out of hand 11 days ago, has barred some foreign students from taking part in any future demonstrations.

Student sources said Monday. The Soviet government drew sharp criticism from the United States for not doing enough to prevent trouble during the March 4 outbreak at the U.S. embassy and from Red China for doing too much to put down the demonstration. The harsh Chinese accusations made the Chinese-Soviet split worse.

The student informants said some students at Moscow's Patrice Lumumba University were warned, after the outbreak, against further demonstrations. The university, named for the Congo's slain first premier, has no Chinese students but many of its students from underdeveloped nations frequently join in anti-American demonstrations in Moscow.

Injuries Claimed

The Chinese claimed that more than 30 Chinese students were injured, nine seriously, in the March 4 demonstration, which had as its pretext protests against U.S. air strikes in North Viet Nam. The Soviet Union claimed that 30 Soviet police and soldiers were injured by Chinese students, four of them seriously. The soldiers had to be called out to put down the demonstrators.

Soviet authorities in the past have used demonstrations at foreign embassies to emphasize Soviet policy, but they now seem to be moving to prevent future demonstrations—or at least they do not organize themselves.

Queen, Duchess In Reconciliation

London (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II brought an end Monday night to nearly 30 years of American-born Duchess of Windsor. The two women met in the privacy of the duke's hospital suite where the ex-king is convalescing from three eye operations.

The meeting was the first time Elizabeth and the twice-divorced former Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore had met since Windsor, as King Edward VIII, abdicated in 1936 to marry "the woman I love."

With the duke sitting in a chair, the three chatted for 25 minutes. The queen, her uncle and her aunt were alone. Officials at Buckingham Palace knew nothing of what they said.

LBJ's Health Is 'Excellent'

Washington (UPI) — President Johnson's doctors said Monday that his "general health is excellent." But they advised him to mix more play with his work.

The four doctors examined Johnson Saturday — a tough presidential workday marked by a three-hour conference with Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, and a White House news conference.

In releasing their report Monday, the doctors said Johnson's chest, heart, blood pressure, abdomen and lower intestinal tract were "entirely normal."

The same verdict was given on the President's electrocardiogram, and his blood and urine checks.

SPACE IS NOT FOR HER

Sister M. Margaret Bealmear had to smile when she got a letter from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration inviting her to apply for astronaut training. Passing up the chance, she said, "America isn't ready for a woman in orbit, much less a nun." She is studying for her Ph.D. at Notre Dame University.

Most Negroes Turned Down In Alabama Vote Registering

Montgomery, Ala. (AP) — The Justice Department says three out of four Negroes who applied for voter registration in the first two months of the civil rights campaign at Selma were turned down.

By contrast, a detailed statistical study of registration in several counties in Alabama's so-called Black Belt disclosed that two out of three prospective white voters whose applications were processed by the board of registrars at Selma were accepted in the same two months.

The survey was put into the record at a federal court hearing which will determine whether Negroes demanding equal voting rights will be allowed to march from Selma to Montgomery, 50 miles away, to dramatize their protest.

150 Turned Down

Since the right-to-vote drive, led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., began in January, the government survey showed 207 Negroes were interviewed by the Dallas County registration board in the two-month period which ended Feb. 28. Of these, 48 were registered to vote; the remaining 159 were turned down. At the same time, 59 white applicants were approved and only 29 were rejected.

The study did not show why the Negroes failed. A tough literacy test subsequently banned by a federal court order was used, however, for most of the two-month period as a means of determining qualifications of prospective voters.

U.S. Dist Judge Daniel H. Thomas in Mobile outlawed the literacy questionnaire on Feb. 4, and the board was in session only once between that time and the end of the two-month period covered by the government study.

The statistics were put into the court record to support the Justice Department's contention that the Negroes have been subject to discrimination. They also reflected a comparable high rate of rejection among Negro applicants since June 1961, the month from which the survey was begun.

The government survey did not give an up-to-date total for the number of white and Negro voters in Dallas County. Unofficial estimates show about 9,500 white persons on the voting list out of a total of 14,400 of voting age in the county and only about 600 Negro voters out of 15,000 Negroes of voting age.

Outside the courtroom, a state official, meanwhile, pointed out that none of the federal court suits charging voter discrimination in Alabama has been based on the actions of registration boards now holding office.

West German officials and Western diplomats in Cairo said they still were confused about the degree of unanimity—or the lack of it—with which the Arab states voted the sanctions against Bonn.

None of the Arab diplomats gathered in Cairo would say how many of the 13 Arab states would go along with what apparently was a majority vote to sever diplomatic ties with Bonn.

According to the charter of the Arab league, only states voting "yes" are bound by majority vote. Morocco, Tunisia and Libya are reported to have expressed reservations about diplomatic reprisals against Bonn pending approval of their heads of state.

The foreign ministers' resolution for economic sanctions against Bonn was worded in such a qualified manner that it was generally interpreted as an empty threat.

The Israeli parliament is scheduled to vote in Jerusalem Tuesday on the decision of Prime Minister Levi Eshkol's cabinet to accept Bonn's offer of diplomatic ties in Paris, the traveling Israeli foreign minister, Mrs. Golda Meir, told newsmen she expected to vote to be a majority in favor.

In Bonn, a West German government spokesman said the government welcomed the Israeli decision but said it would greatly regret a break in relations by the Arab countries.

But the shape of Bonn's actual future relations with Cairo and especially with the rest of the Arab world remained clouded after the Arab foreign ministers' conference.

German Diplomats In Cairo Packing

Cairo (AP) — West German embassy officials started packing Monday and said it was possible they would haul down their flag and end diplomatic activities in Egypt by Wednesday because of the pending establishment of Israeli-German diplomatic relations.

At the same time, the Egyptian foreign ministry announced that its ambassador to West Germany will not return to Bonn, in line with the decision of Arab foreign ministers meeting here to withdraw their chief envoys from Bonn immediately.

The Arab meeting, at the beckoning of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, voided early Monday to break off diplomatic relations with Bonn when the West Germans and Israelis officially seal their diplomatic ties.

Gaullists Hold Own In Election

Paris (AP) — Government figures showed Monday night that the Gaullist party held its own but failed to attract any marked new grass roots support in the first round of municipal elections.

Interior Minister Roger Frey gave the breakdown in Sunday's balloting for the 404,845 municipal council seats decided in the first round of voting in which a majority was needed to win. Next Sunday the remaining 64,034 seats will be decided. Then only a plurality will be enough to win.

Frey's figures were spread among 5 main political formations and 28 splinters or combinations or parties. The Gaullist Union for the New Republic Party (UNR) was itself split into 10 different categories as candidates formed what they hoped would be winning teams to take over city halls.

Results of the two-hour strike, intended to wipe out one source of supplies fed to the Viet Cong via the Ho Chi Minh Trail, officially were described as excellent.

Secondary explosions spurted from the target area under rockets, bombs and 20MM cannon fire of the planes, which a military spokesman said totaled "100 plus." It was understood as many as 150 may have taken part.

30 Ordnance Buildings
Col. Hal I. Price, director of operations for the 2nd Air Division, said 30 buildings for ordnance storage were hit at Phu Qui.

Price reported the loss of one plane, a propeller-driven A1 that crashed short of a car on returning from the strike. Most of the raiders were jets. Price said damage from ground fire was light, though a considerable number of anti-aircraft emplacements ringed the widely dispersed buildings. There was no aerial opposition.

Radio Hanoi declared three planes were shot down and many others damaged by ground fire. It made no mention of casualties or damage.

Most Northly
The raid was the most northly of the series.

U.S. authorities tightened restrictions on news coverage of the air activities and a spokesman said the new policy rules out disclosures on a number of subjects.

As to the precise number of planes, he would say only "100 plus." As to the take-off points, he offered the generalization, "Southeast Asia."

ARGENTINA PERONISTS GAIN SEATS

Buenos Aires (UPI)—Communist-supported followers of Juan D. Peron scored impressive gains in Argentina's off-year congressional elections Monday and set up a new clamor for return of the ousted strong man.

The Communist-Peronist coalition won better than 36% of the popular vote and more than tripled its congressional strength in the Sunday balloting. The government with 29% of the vote just about held its own.

The election outcome made the Peronists a formidable force in the 192-member lower house of the congress. They gained 35 new seats to bring their chamber total to 52. Only the government with 71 seats in the chamber has bigger representation. The government lost one seat Sunday.

Peronist leader Carlos A. Bramuglia set up an immediate clamor for Peron's return from exile in Spain to "pacify" the country.

February Job Gain Reported

Washington (P)—Led by construction and manufacturing, all major industries showed job gains in February, the Labor Department said Monday.

Total payroll employment for the month was 59,560,000 on a seasonally adjusted basis, a gain of 230,000 from January, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The actual increase in jobs was 24,000, but the Labor Department adjusts the figures to reflect expected seasonal trends.

Adjusted Figure
Thus, since all major segments of the economy either showed actual gains or less than usual decreases, the adjustment give the larger figure.

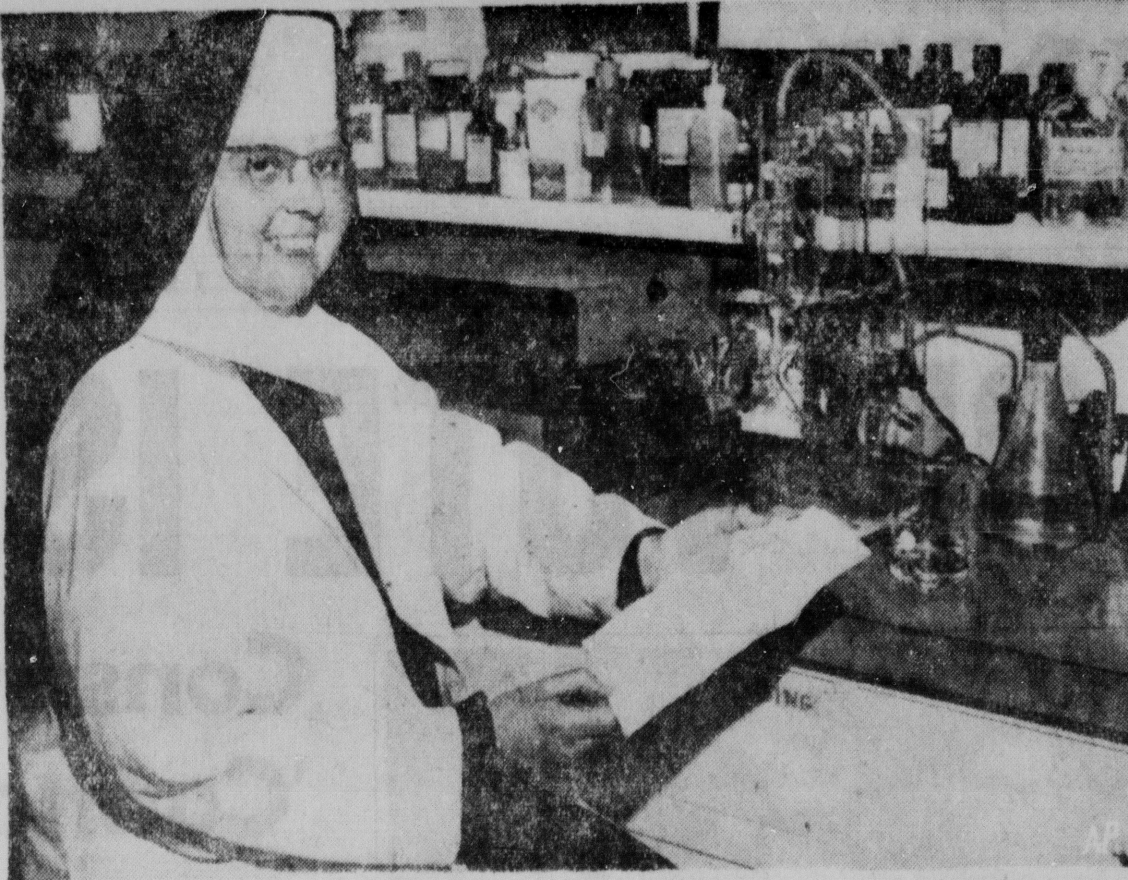

Payroll employment includes all jobs except in agriculture, self-employed workers, family workers and domestic workers.

Other industries showing seasonal gains in addition to construction and manufacturing were transportation, public utilities, wholesale and retail trade, finance and real estate, service industries and state, local and federal government employment.

Dockers Return
About one fourth of the employment increase stemmed from the return to work of more than 50,000 longshoremen who had been in strike for the better part of two months.

Manufacturing employment, up 70,000 to 17.5 million, was at the highest February level since the Korean War.

Construction employment, although dropping slightly to 2.7 million, was at the highest level on record for February, a month that usually sees a much larger drop.

SPACE IS NOT FOR HER

Sister M. Margaret Bealmear had to smile when she got a letter from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration inviting her to apply for astronaut training.

Passing up the chance, she said, "America isn't ready for a woman in orbit, much less a nun." She is studying for her Ph.D. at Notre Dame University.

Most Negroes Turned Down In Alabama Vote Registering

Montgomery, Ala. (P)—The Justice Department says three out of four Negroes who applied for voter registration in the first two months of the civil rights campaign at Selma were turned down.

By contrast, a detailed statistical study of registration in several counties in Alabama's soil-rich Black Belt disclosed that two out of three prospective white voters whose applications were processed by the board of registrars at Selma were accepted in the same two months.

The survey was put into the record at a federal court hearing which will determine whether Negroes demanding equal voting rights will be allowed to march from Selma to Montgomery, 50 miles away, to dramatize their protest.

159 Turned Down
Since the right-to-vote drive, led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., began in January, the government survey showed 207 Negroes were interviewed by the Dallas County registration board in the two-month period which ended Feb. 28. Of these, 48 were registered to vote; the remaining 159 were turned down. At the same time, 59 white applicants were approved and only 29 were rejected.

The study did not show why the Negroes failed. A tough literacy test subsequently banned by a federal court order was used, however, for most of the two-month period as a means of determining qualifications of prospective voters.

U.S. Dist. Judge Daniel H. Thomas in Mobile outlawed the literacy questionnaire on Feb. 4, and the board was in session only once between that time and the end of the two-month period covered by the government study.

German Diplomats In Cairo Packing

Cairo (P)—West German embassy officials started packing Monday and said it was possible they would haul down their flag and end diplomatic activities in Egypt by Wednesday because of the pending establishment of Israeli-German diplomatic relations.

At the same time, the Egyptian foreign ministry announced that its ambassador to West Germany will not return to Bonn, in line with the decision of Arab foreign ministers meeting here to withdraw their chief envoys from Bonn immediately.

The Arab meeting, at the behest of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, voted early Monday to break off diplomatic relations with Bonn when the West Germans and Israelis officially seal their diplomatic ties.

Majority Expected

The Israeli parliament is scheduled to vote in Jerusalem Tuesday on the decision of Prime Minister Levi Eshkol's cabinet to accept Bonn's offer of diplomatic ties. In Paris, the traveling Israeli foreign minister, Mrs. Golda Meir, told newsmen she expected to vote to be a majority in favor.

In Bonn, a West German government spokesman said the government welcomed the Israeli decision but said it would greatly regret a break in relations by the Arab countries.

But the shape of Bonn's actual future relations with Cairo and especially with the rest of the Arab world remained clouded after the Arab foreign ministers' conference.

Confusion

West German officials and Western diplomats in Cairo said they still were confused about the degree of unanimity—or the lack of it—with which the Arab states voted the sanctions against Bonn.

None of the Arab diplomats gathered in Cairo would say how many of the 13 Arab states would go along with what apparently was a majority vote to sever diplomatic ties with Bonn.

According to the charter of the Arab league, only states voting "yes" are bound by majority vote. Morocco, Tunisia and Libya are reported to have expressed reservations about diplomatic reprisals against Bonn pending approval of their heads of state.

Empty

The foreign ministers' resolution for economic sanctions against Bonn was worded in such a qualified manner that it was generally interpreted as an empty threat.

Gaullists Hold Own In Election

Paris (P)—Government figures showed Monday night that the Gaullist party held its own but failed to attract any marked new grass roots support in the first round of municipal elections.

At the same time, it was clear that at least on the local level the French political party system is as splintered as when Charles de Gaulle became president more than six years ago as head of France's Fifth Republic. Traditional parties were then ousted from power on the national level.

Interior Minister Roger Frey gave the breakdown in Sunday's balloting for the 404,845 municipal council seats decided in the first round of voting in which a majority was needed to win. Next Sunday the remaining 64,034 seats will be decided. Then only a plurality will be enough to win.

Frey's figures were spread among 5 main political formations and 28 splinters or combinations or parties. The Gaullist Union for the New Republic Party (UNR) was itself split into 10 different categories as candidates formed what they hoped would be winning teams to take over city halls.

The seven dollar misunderstanding

The misunderstanding has to do with Chrysler and prices. Let's clear it up together.

This year, a full-sized Chrysler Newport 2-Door Hardtop is priced less than $7 a month more than the most popular smaller cars.

And when you compare a Chrysler with cars that are even smaller than Ford and Chevrolet, you're really in for a surprise. Their names are the only thing big about them.

Every car compared below is a 2-door hardtop. They all have V-8 engines, automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, radio and heater. There is only one meaningful difference: Chrysler is the only big one.

So why not see your Chrysler dealer today? Move up to Chrysler... it's easy!

All models are 2-door hardtops equipped with V-8 engine, automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, radio and heater. Monthly payments have been computed on manufacturers' suggested retail price, one-third down and 36 monthly payments. Not included are the extras you pay for on practically any new car: whitewall tires, deluxe wheel covers, destination charges, state and local taxes, interest, insurance and licensing fees.

Some Foreign Students Can't Be Demonstrators

Moscow (P)—The Soviet Union, stung by demonstrations which got out of hand 11 days ago, has barred some foreign students from taking part in any future demonstrations, student sources said Monday.

The Soviet government drew sharp criticism from the United States for not doing enough to prevent trouble during the March 4 outbreak at the U.S. embassy and from Red China for doing too much to put down the demonstration. The harsh Chinese accusations made the Chinese-Soviet split worse.

The student informants said some students at Moscow's Patrice Lumumba University were warned, after the outbreak, against further demonstrations. The university, named for the Congo's slain first premier, has no Chinese students but many of its students from underdeveloped nations frequently join in anti-American demonstrations in Moscow.

Injuries Claimed

The Chinese claimed that more than 30 Chinese students were injured, nine seriously, in the March 4 demonstration, which had as its pretext protests against U.S. air strikes in North Viet Nam. The Soviet Union claimed that 30 Soviet police and soldiers were injured by Chinese students, four of them seriously. The soldiers had to be called out to put down the demonstrators.

Soviet authorities in the past have used demonstrations at foreign embassies to emphasize Soviet policy, but they now seem to be moving to prevent future demonstrations—or at least they do not organize themselves.

Queen, Duchess In Reconciliation

London (P)—Queen Elizabeth II brought an end Monday night to nearly 30 years of American-born Duchess of Windsor. The two women met in the privacy of the duke's hospital suite where the ex-king is convalescing from three eye operations.

The meeting was the first time Elizabeth and the twice-divorced former Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore had met since Windsor, as King Edward VIII, abdicated in 1936 to marry "the woman I love."

With the duke sitting in a chair, the three chatted for 25 minutes. The queen, her uncle and her aunt were alone. Officials at Buckingham Palace knew nothing of what they said.

LBJ's Health Is 'Excellent'

Washington (UPI)—President Johnson's doctors said Monday that his "general health is excellent." But they advised him to mix more play with his work.

The four doctors examined Johnson Saturday — a tough presidential workday marked by a three-hour conference with Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, and a White House news conference.

In releasing their report Monday, the doctors said Johnson's chest, heart, blood pressure, abdomen and lower intestinal tract were "entirely normal."

The same verdict was given on the President's electrocardiogram, and his blood and urine checks.

Mayor, Attorney Clash Over South Street Liquor Request

By BOB SCHREFF
Star Staff Writer

A heated discussion between Mayor Dean Petersen and attorney Hymen Rosenberg highlighted the latest attempt by Mitch Tavlin to gain City Council approval of a change of location of a liquor license to 1244 South St.

Further action on Tavlin's application was delayed at least a week as the resolution approving the transfer could not obtain either four positive or four negative votes, as required by the city charter.

Councilmen John Mason and D. L. Tyrrell, who is recovering from an illness, were absent from Monday's council meeting.

Voting in favor of the change of location were council members Edward Becker and Ervin Peterson. Mrs. Helen Boosalis, John Comstock and Lloyd Hinkley voted no. During the public hearing, Rosenberg, representing Tavlin, again told the council that the proposed location complies with both state law and the council's previous resolution setting out areas for the location of package liquor licenses.

'Arbitrary, Capricious' He charged that the council had acted in an "arbitrary and capricious" manner in denying recent requests for transfer of licenses to the South St. area.

Mayor Petersen said that the council's policy "doesn't mean that everyone in the City of Lincoln can move out there."

Rosenberg replied: "And that doesn't mean that just one license should be issued."

If that is the case, then your resolution should have said, 'we will only allow one license' and we will give that license to Mr. Baughan (Leroy Baughan, 2100 So. 16th). "How can you possibly conclude that one outlet is enough?" he added.

Rosenberg then cited a court decision in another state allowing a transfer of a liquor license in the face of a denial by the local governing body.

Cites 'Favors'

Quoting from the decision, he mentioned "clandestine arrangements and political favors."

Mayor Petersen asked Rosenberg: "Are you accusing the mayor or anyone on this council . . . ?"

"I really don't know if there was any arrangement," Rosenberg interjected. "I just don't understand the action of this council."

Petersen and Comstock argued that the council had not acted unreasonably, and that the council needed to control the liquor situation by deciding for or against the transfer of licenses to specific locations.

Rosenberg indicated that Tavlin's application would be put before the State Liquor Control Commission and taken to District Court, if necessary.

As in recent weeks, opposition to the proposed transfer attended the council meeting. The Rev. Clarence Campbell, pastor of St. James Methodist Church, presented a written statement of protest to the council, "registering our opposition to the granting of this license and to all other license applications in the immediate area."

Cash Commitment For Teens Urged

City Council member Mrs. Helen Boosalis Monday urged the council to make a more definite commitment to Lincoln teen-agers regarding the proposed construction of a multi-purpose center.

Mrs. Boosalis said that the council should pass a resolution encouraging the mayor to include some funds for such a building in this year's capital improvement budget, "to give the teen-agers greater incentive in their fund raising drive."

"We should give them a goal, some figure to shoot for," she added.

Mayor Dean Petersen, noting that a decision cannot be made until budget hearings in August, indicated a "profound respect for young people."

Soul Searching
"I want them to get what they ask for, but this budget will take a lot of soul searching," he said.

In other business, the council gave approval to a request by Woodrow Brinkman for a special permit to develop an auto salvage yard near 1st and L.

Brinkman was notified that he will be required to clear that portion of his property to be acquired as right-of-way for the proposed K St. Viaduct, when the city or the state initiates right-of-way acquisition.

The special permit will be revoked when the viaduct is open to use by the general public.

The council also granted a special permit to Mrs. B. J. Pagram to build a nursing home near 14th and Superior.

Other ordinances acted upon:

Lincoln Joins Scottsbluff In Seeking High Court Ruling

The city of Lincoln Monday joined the city of Scottsbluff in asking the State Supreme Court to declare constitutional a 1963 law which changed the annexation procedures for first class cities.

A constitutional test of the law was carried to the high court by the trustees of the estate of A. H. Read who contend the legislation denies due process of law.

The dispute involves the city of Scottsbluff's annexation of 43 acres of Read land northwest of the city in August of 1963. The annexation was based on the 1963 law.

In a "friend of the court" brief, the city of Lincoln says it is "particularly concerned about the attack on the constitutionality of the statute . . . in view of the fact that the Legislature has provided the same procedure for annexation by cities of the first class as it had provided many years prior to that time for cities of the metropolitan and primary classes."

Lincoln is a primary class city.

Trustees of the Read estate—Herbert, Winifred, J. A. M. and Robert Read—appealed the case to the Supreme Court after the Scotts Bluff District Court ruled the land was validly annexed.

The Reads contend the 1963 law violates the state and U.S. constitutions because it fails to provide for prior notice of annexations or prior hearing or determination of the necessity or reasonableness of annexations.

Lincoln City Atty. Ralph Nelson, in Lincoln's brief, concurs with the city of Scottsbluff's contention that cities can annex unincorporated areas urban in nature without prior notice or assent of the inhabitants of the annexed areas.

The special permit will be revoked when the viaduct is open to use by the general public.

The council also granted a special permit to Mrs. B. J. Pegram to build a nursing home near 14th and Superior.

Other ordinances acted upon:

Cash Commitment For Teens Urged

City Council member Mrs. Helen Boosalis Monday urged the council to make a more definite commitment to Lincoln teen-agers regarding the proposed construction of a multi-purpose center.

Mrs. Boosalis said that the council should pass a resolution encouraging the mayor to include some funds for such a building in this year's capital improvement budget, "to give the teen-agers greater incentive in their fund raising drive."

"We should give them a goal, some figure to shoot for," she added.

Mayor Dean Petersen, noting that a decision cannot be made until budget hearings in August, indicated a "profound respect for young people."

Soul Searching

"I want them to get what they ask for, but this budget will take a lot of soul searching," he said.

In other business, the council gave approval to a request by Woodrow Brinkman for a special permit to develop an auto salvage yard near 1st and L.

Brinkman was notified that he will be required to clear that portion of his property to be acquired as right-of-way for the proposed K St. Viaduct, when the city or the state initiates right-of-way acquisition.

The special permit will be revoked when the viaduct is open to use by the general public.

The council also granted a special permit to Mrs. B. J. Pegram to build a nursing home near 14th and Superior.

Other ordinances acted upon:

OK Change For Paving Assessment

A new method for determining paving assessments for corner lots in city paving districts was approved by the City Council at a special Monday morning session.

Council members instructed the city engineering department to start figuring all paving assessments under the new formula, which calls for a decrease in the corner lot's percentage of cost from 33 1/2% to 22%, while the interior lots are assessed for the relief provided the corner lots.

The engineering department claims the new formula will be fairer to property owners who eventually have paving projects in front and on one side of their homes.

In a report to the council, City Engineer Richard Erixon said the old method, used in Lincoln since the 1890's, is outdated and causing problems.

"We believe the old method should be revised by a mathematical method to relieve corner lots on rectangular platting", he said.

Deputy City Attorney Henry Holst told the council that he sees no serious legal problem in using the new formula since it is updating present procedure.

The council was also informed by Building Inspection Superintendent Charles Seale that the city might "very shortly be forced to stop the contractors from proceeding with the construction" of Lincoln General Hospital until certain building and zoning problems are solved.

Seale told the council that violations of the building code and zoning ordinances have occurred in areas including maximum permissible floor area, fire-resistant materials regulations, off-street parking and total lot area

Improving The Product

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

In the beautiful state of Montana, the Legislature has adjourned. This did without taking action on the problem of reapportionment that is pressing upon it, as it presses upon every state in the Union these days. In Montana, it is reported that some senators represent up to 88 times as many constituents as others.

While knowing nothing of the details of the Montana situation, it would seem that the state is in line for a little direction from the federal courts. Here in Nebraska we face the same problem but not on quite as grand a scale. The disparity among districts here runs 1 to 1.67 and that is not very great. Still, even Nebraska has to reapportion itself and our state senators have been hard at work in the problem. One oddity of the situation is that the push on reapportionment comes from the federal level—the U.S. Supreme Court.

The odd thing that is that the nation's legislative branch has a few skeletons in its own closet. Some say that it is only a matter of time before the court orders Congress to reflect representation by population only. This, however, is an assumption with which many people can and do disagree. It is not automatic that Congress should reapportion simply because states must do so.

In Congress you have represented the separate political entity of each state. Within the states, there is not the same kind of political division of people. And within the states there is not even the same degree of social and economic difference that exists among the various states.

There is another item at the national level, however, that could and should be changed. Congress is considering and believed likely to pass a bill that would eliminate the age-old practice of gerrymandering in the state. The House will vote this week on a bill to correct odd-shaped congressional districts. In Nebraska, it is not too poorly situated in this regard. Our three congressional districts are not what everyone might like them to be but they could be a lot worse. There are districts in some states that look like a piece out of a tough jig-saw puzzle. Such districts as this are drawn purely for the political advantage they can give a party.

In this kind of approach, districts will be set up which tend to place the members of one party in a minority. In areas heavily of one party or another, a district might be formed to lump all these party members into a single area, thus confirming their power and reducing their effectiveness. The practice of gerrymandering is certainly just as bad as unequal apportionment because it destroys the real meaning of equal representation. The idea behind such gerrymandering is to take away the effectiveness of the voting rights of the members of a certain political party. It is an action that falls upon the conscience of the states but one of great federal concern. It is hoped that the House takes it upon itself to pass a law that would bring a final end to this practice.

It is truly amazing to witness the ends to which we will sometimes go to abort the system of government with which we live. Stories coming out of Russia this week report on the first public appearance of former Premier Nikita Khrushchev. Mr. Khrushchev turned up at his local voting precinct to cast a ballot in national elections.

According to reports, the former premier dropped an unmarked ballot into the box. This is probably the way a lot of Russians are voting because they are not given any choice. They used the so-called Missouri system of electing judges but they use it across the board. For all offices, the voters can say only yes or no as to a single candidate.

We here in the United States have the finest form of government that man has ever devised but we often fail to appreciate it. We guarantee in our Constitution the right of every individual to vote and we then go out and dream up ways of circumventing this right. We have voter registration laws that stop some people from exercising their rights; we have gerrymandering and area representation. In addition to this, we have a host of local devices for avoiding a public vote on selected subjects or issues.

It is a fact that the electorate can be most obstinate at times. Some election outcomes can make you wonder about the system we have. But when all is said and done, our system is far ahead of the world average and one we should be constantly seeking to improve rather than to weaken.

Against Our Own Good

Privacy A Lost Cause?

Considerable concern is expressed now and then in regard to the various ways in which the privacy of the individual is infringed upon. The Post Office Department, of late, has been hard put to defend its practice of peeking on employees and patrons and its practice of watching the mail of selected individuals.

American industry has had to defend, too, some of its practices aimed at finding out about its employees and even its prospective employees. Many large industries now use a lie detector machine in the interview process, making sure that the company comes to know the most intimate details of an individual's life.

One of the problems with the lie detector is that the company might not know what to do with information it obtains. An applicant may show on the lie detector to have been involved in something unfavorable at some time in his life but the machine can't say much about rehabilitation or the current state of the individual's affairs.

If that situation is discouraging to you, you might be still more upset to learn that even the White House is not safe from bugging devices of various kinds. A New York Times story reports that, despite all precautions, someone still manages now and then to plant a listening device in the White House.

One way of meeting the problem is through a highly amplified wave length system set up throughout the White House. If the President is talking on the phone, he merely turns up the music and the eavesdroppers get a pleasant melody instead of the chief executive's conversation. If even the President's privacy cannot be guaranteed, what chance is there for the rest of us?

The Stratton Case

The country was treated to a revealing event recently and is now meditating over the right and wrong of political contributions.

It came about when the federal Internal Revenue Bureau took former Governor William Stratton, of Illinois, into court in an effort to collect income taxes on a substantial sum of money, contributing to an excess in his campaign fund.

The governor had used a substantial amount of it to build for himself and family a neat and spacious summer cottage. He also purchased a family houseboat, a mink coat for his wife and other things.

Mr. Stratton won his case on the argument that the expenditure was really political because it provided ceremonial necessities, and also on the testimony of Senator Dirksen. Dirksen said it is customary for non-earmarked political contributions to be spent at the discretion of the favored candidate. This definition is observed generally by both political parties. It means that a candidate does not return unspent campaign funds to the contributors, but can lay them by for future campaigns or just plain keep them.

The public is not too greatly concerned about the tax angle, but it does see a serious flaw in the accounting practices and the lack of full reporting of campaign contributions. It provides a way for a contributor to reward a public official far beyond his campaign needs in return for attitudes or actions favorable to the contributor and in that sense it is a corrupting force.

The situation indicates we need a full disclosure law and a public accounting of what is ultimately done with the money.

Water Fight Is On

The speed at which Nebraska's water problem is coming to the fore is, to the uninitiated, an unprecedented and unexpected event.

Nebraska has, since the beginning, felt that it had more than enough water for any contingency. And even today it has only begun conservation measures and it is still wasting water like a profligate.

Perhaps the biggest error has been in the definition of "plenty." Plenty is a relative term. It exists when demand is less than the supply. But the same plenty can become a shortage when it is exceeded by demand. Our old term of plenty began before irrigation, before industrialization and before the greatly increased domestic and municipal demand.

The issue broke Monday in the legislature during consideration of a proposed amendment to Nebraska's historic water policy. The amendment was offered by Sen. Gerdes who is seeking to relieve a municipal water problem at Chadron by relaxing the restrictions on land condemnation at some distance from a municipality in order to tap ground water supplies. It brought on the question whether anyone should have exclusive right to water. Irrigating farmers are protesting the inroads of municipalities, tapping ground water sources at the expense of cropping. Resistance came from Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice who pointed out that his city had pledged adequate water to new industries that are being built there. He pointed out that industrial development will end if industrial use is kept at the bottom of the priority list, behind domestic and agricultural use. Beatrice is currently having difficulty in obtaining a greater supply of water because of the resistance of well irrigators.

So the fight for water is well outlined. But it is premature, at least in eastern Nebraska. Reservoirs on our running streams would meet our requirements for years to come.

DREW PEARSON

Attorney General Not Pushy Sort

WASHINGTON — The man whom President Johnson relies on to handle the bitter civil rights turmoil in Alabama and who has drafted a new voting rights bill for the South is a mild-mannered, very firm lawyer who got his job by not pushing.

Nicholas Katzenbach has been in the Justice Department since the first days of the Kennedy administration, and up until fairly recently, when kicking pickets were dragged from the hallway outside his office, the country at large had not heard much about him.

He got his job through just the opposite tactics used by most job seekers—being unobtrusive.

When Bobby Kennedy bowed out as attorney general, he asked LBJ to continue Katzenbach until after the election so he could establish himself in private law practice to better advantage later. Johnson thought it was only fair to honor the request of a retiring cabinet member and told Kennedy he would keep Katzenbach as acting attorney general until after the inauguration.

On inauguration day, the President had a talk with his acting attorney general, asked him what he wanted to do. Katzenbach replied he would like to stay in government service. He said he liked government service and would be glad to stay on and do anything that came along.

The President told him that Central Intelligence was open, since John McCone was leaving. How would he like that?

"If my President asks me to serve I'll be glad to serve—any place," replied the attorney general.

The President told Nick he would think it over and be in touch with him. Later Mr. and Mrs. Katzenbach came to dinner—a farewell for retiring Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges. Mrs. Johnson liked Mrs. Katzenbach, found her a lady of charm and courtesy.

So, a week or so later, the President invited the Katzenbachs to come over for dinner privately. They didn't sit down until 10 p.m., the usual hour when the President dines. He is busy at his desk until that time almost every evening.

At the end of the dinner the President said, "How would you like to stay on and be my lawyer?"

"I would like to do anything you want me to do," replied Katzenbach.

"If it's all right with you I'd like to have a young fellow named Ramsey Clark be your deputy," suggested the President. He recalled that Katzenbach had previously told him he thought well of Ramsey, the son of Justice Tom Clark.

That was the end of the conversation. Later the President confided to an associate that he had been impressed with the fact that Katzenbach never pressured him, was willing to take any job at all. That was the deciding factor in his appointment.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Collins Well Suited To His Hard Task

WASHINGTON — In the heat and dust of battle the peacemaker who stands between the two lines is likely to be shot at from both sides. That was the difficult role of Le Roy Collins in the uneasy truce at Selma, Ala.

His title is director of the Federal Community Relations Service, an office created under the civil rights act passed last year.

Collins' immediate objective at Selma was to prevent wholesale bloodshed after the police brutality which shocked the nation. The goal beyond the burning, explosive crisis was to see that the Civil Rights Act is enforced. That has been true in the hundred or more cases the community relations service has handled since its creation last July.

Those who have watched him at work believe that President Johnson could hardly have found a man better equipped for the assignment. A Southerner, a two-term governor of Florida, he has a compassionate understanding of the problem of integration as it affects both the South and the North and, above all, the Negro. Slow-spoken, almost courtly in manner, he has the two qualities needed to stand resolute in the eye of the storm—patience and an unshakable calm.

What distressed his associates about the report out of Selma was the implication that he had been sent there by the President with a pre-arranged plan to get a compromise deal between the white law-enforcement officers and the civil rights demonstrators. That was not true, they say. He exercised the broad mandate that goes with the office to work with all elements so that a peaceful solution might come out of what threatened from moment to moment to be civil war.

The testimony of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in federal court in Montgomery showed how the compromise was worked out. King could not accept less than a march, however curtailed. The state troopers acting under orders of Gov. George Wallace would not back down on the edict against marching on the highway. The danger, as both King and Collins were only too well aware, was that the restless and impatient younger Negroes would be unwilling to accept restraint.

Selma is by no means the first perilous situation in which Collins has found himself between the lines. His first assignment was in St. Helena's parish in Louisiana where opposition to school desegregation had created a threat of violence. Under the Civil Rights Act a federal judge can refer to the community relations service any menacing disorder resulting from a judicial finding.

Patchwork Prairie Country

March is still wearing the winter dress of white and black. The hillsides and shaded ravines are still snow-covered. It is somewhat of a patchy cove with here and there spots of gray showing through. With each day of sunlight the snow disappears, allowing more of the grays and blacks to stand out, blending into a mottled effect that softens the landscape.

Soon the spears of green will creep into the color weave and add a bit of magic to the countryside.

Just in case I had not anticipated this new season, a robin flitted past my window this morning to remind me. The sun was casting a warm glow and for all the world it looked as if spring had arrived. The robin came to rest in the juniper tree near the front window. Soon it was joined by another in a drab red-gray breast that indicated a female of the species. They hopped from branch to branch sometimes almost hidden in the heavy greenery of the tree. At first they warbled in deep throaty tones, not exactly like the true song of the robin. It was obvious they were house-hunting.

"What do you think of this neighborhood, Myrtle? No cats are around and I just noticed a number of cherry trees in the orchard as I flew over so we will be close to a good food supply."

She cocked her head as she continued to eye each branch while at the same time lending her ear to a flight of sparrows that had settled nearby.

"It sounds as if we will have noisy neighbors, but I can tolerate them much better than the young widow you were casting eyes at just before we left Texas."

I could hear the argument grow bitter, but so did the weather. Within fifteen minutes, the clouds had covered the sun and it was snowing. I saw the robins fluff out their feathers to protect them against the wind.

"Why did we ever leave the Southland?" she asked soberly. "Just look at my new spring outfit . . . it's ruined."

"Just remember, Myrtle, it was your idea to get started. You were jealous and wanted to fly me out before the neighbors started to gossip. As for the young widow . . . well I never . . ."

"Let's forget about the widow," she peeped as she moved closer. "We're beginning to sound too much like people."

The Farmer is beginning to think in terms of a new work schedule: First must come the pre-measuring of wheat, corn and milo ground. Fertilizing the wheat will be one of the early tasks. Next will be sowing sweet clover in a part of the wheat field.

An area that includes a rolling side hill is not as productive as it should be. In the six years we have been farming this land, it has never been seeded with a legume crop. The Farmer decided this is the year to do it. An adjoining field has been seeded down with alfalfa for several years.

When this field has been put in sweet clover, we will almost have completed a full circuit of improving our land with the use of plants as a soil builder. Commercial fertilizer has been used for several years.

We do not intend to rob the soil of its last bit of fertility. We have made our living from the land. There are others who will wish to do so after we have left it. It is our small obligation to leave this land as good or better than when we acquired it. Perhaps someone will follow us who also feels a kinship with the land, and will think kindly of the old couple who left it their heritage.

Lilac Time

Lincoln, Neb.
Half an acre of lilacs grew below my window. Flower covered a dozen hillsides and a lazy creek shook hands with any boy at play.

Memory serves little purpose unless it is related to present conditions. Just now when banks of clean, white snow have come to look like piles of something ready for the laundry it is hard to picture lilac time here in lilac city. Lincoln has many lilac bushes. Yet scenes that have made their impression since the long ago and far away have included few lilac trees. Lincoln has none.

"You can graft lilacs onto ash trees," Father once said to me. Though it is not within the reach of imagination to find lilacs growing out of the tops of all the ash trees in the city, it should be reasonable to picture a fountain surrounded by lilac trees.

Even now some youngsters with a jackknife in his pocket may touch upon the secret hidden in the cambium layers and make the blossoms swing from the highest branches. He sees no fountain in the lilac trees. He only wants to make things grow. Yet some place and time may beckon him and then the passing breeze will write his name in perfume with a gift pen. And lilac trees will grow in lilac town.

I am not concerned with writing a reasoned letter because I am mad.

I voted for LBJ, but now I see that he's so concerned with taxing one segment of the population to support another, with acting from a consensus, that he is afraid to do anything simply because it is right. He is a warmonger and a civil rights hypocrite.

Surely the end cannot be too distant—not the end the Christians talk about, with a few finding salvation—but total doom, and certainly not a great society.

I would like to know how Supt. Williamson can in one breath say, "The cemetery doesn't discriminate," and yet move a child's body in secret from a "white section." Is he stupid or does he think all Negroes are? Another statement in the news item quoted Mr. Williamson as saying, "We didn't know it was colored when the mortician called." If the policy is one of non-segregation, why should he know one way or the other? I will not use such an unfortunate incident as this to prolong the agony of the family in their bereavement. However, as a friend of the family, I cannot sit silently by to this injustice.

I would ask Mr. Williamson to explain his statement: "We moved it over to the section where we thought it belonged." I would also like to know how many other bodies have been moved because Mr. Williamson thought they belonged in another spot.

This incident is a very cruel one for the family but I hope they take heart and do not "sweep it under the rug," as many injustices against them and against me have been done.

Improving The Product

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

In the beautiful state of Montana, the Legislature has adjourned. This it did without taking action on the problem of reapportionment that is pressing upon it, as it presses upon every state in the Union these days. In Montana, it is reported that some senators represent up to 88 times as many constituents as others.

While knowing nothing of the details of the Montana situation, it would seem that the state is in line for a little direction from the federal courts. Here in Nebraska we face the same problem but not on quite as grand a scale. The disparity among districts here runs 1 to 1.67 and that is not very great. Still, even Nebraska has to reapportion itself and our state senators have been hard at work in the problem. One oddity of the situation is that the push on reapportionment comes from the federal level—the U.S. Supreme Court.

The odd thing that is that the nation's legislative branch has a few skeletons in its own closet. Some say that it is only a matter of time before the court orders Congress to reflect representation by population only. This, however, is an assumption with which many people can and do disagree. It is not automatic that Congress should reapportion simply because states must do so.

In Congress you have represented the separate political entity of each state. Within the states, there is not the same kind of political division of people. And within the states there is not even the same degree of social and economic difference that exists among the various states.

There is another item at the national level, however, that could and should be changed. Congress is considering and believed likely to pass a bill that would eliminate the age-old practice of gerrymandering in the state. The House will vote this week on a bill to correct odd-shaped congressional districts. Again, Nebraska is not too poorly situated in this regard. Our three congressional districts are not what everyone might like them to be but they could be a lot worse. There are districts in some states that look like a piece out of a tough jig-saw puzzle. Such districts as this are drawn purely for the political advantage they can give a party.

In this kind of approach, districts will be set up which tend to place the members of one party in a minority. In areas heavily of one party or another, a district might be formed to lump all these party members into a single area, thus confirming their power and reducing their effectiveness. The practice of gerrymandering is certainly just as bad as unequal apportionment because it destroys the real meaning of equal representation. The idea behind such gerrymandering is to take away the effectiveness of the voting rights of the members of a certain political party. It is an action that falls upon the conscience of the states but one of great federal concern. It is hoped that the House takes it upon itself to pass a law that would bring a final end to this practice.

It is truly amazing to witness the ends to which we will sometimes go to abort the system of government with which we live. Stories coming out of Russia this week report on the first public appearance of former Premier Nikita Khrushchev. Mr. Khrushchev turned up at his local voting precinct to cast a ballot in national elections.

According to reports, the former premier dropped an unmarked ballot into the box. This is probably the way a lot of Russians are voting because they are not given any choice. They used the so-called Missouri system of electing judges but they use it across the board. For all of it, the voters can say only yes or no as to a single candidate.

We here in the United States have the finest form of government that man has ever devised but we often fail to appreciate it. We guarantee in our Constitution the right of every individual to vote and we then go out and dream up ways of circumventing this right. We have voter registration laws that stop some people from exercising their rights; we have gerrymandering and area representation. In addition to this, we have a host of local devices for avoiding a public vote on selected subjects or issues.

It is a fact that the electorate can be most obstinate at times. Some election outcomes can make you wonder about the system we have. But when all is said and done, our system is far ahead of the world average and one we should be constantly seeking to improve rather than to weaken.

Against Our Own Good

Privacy A Lost Cause?

Considerable concern is expressed now and then in regard to the various ways in which the privacy of the individual is infringed upon. The Post Office Department, of late, has been hard put to defend its practice of peeking on employees and patrons and its practice of watching the mail of selected individuals.

American industry has had to defend, too, some of its practices aimed at finding out about its employees and even its prospective employees. Many large industries now use a lie detector machine in the interview process, making sure that the company comes to know the most intimate details of an individual's life.

One of the problems with the lie detector is that the company might not know what to do with information it obtains. An applicant may show on the lie detector to have been involved in something unfavorable at some time in his life but the machine can't say much about rehabilitation or the current state of the individual's affairs.

If that situation is discouraging to you, you might be still more upset to learn that even the White House is not safe from bugging devices of various kinds. A New York Times story reports that, despite all precautions, someone still manages now and then to plant a listening device in the White House.

One way of meeting the problem is through a highly amplified wave length system set up throughout the White House. If the President is talking on the phone, he merely turns up the music and the eavesdroppers get a pleasant melody instead of the chief executive's conversation. If even the President's privacy cannot be guaranteed, what chance is there for the rest of us?

The Stratton Case

The country was treated to a revealing event recently and is now meditating over the right and wrong of political contributions.

It came about when the federal Internal Revenue Bureau took former Governor William Stratton, of Illinois, into court in an effort to collect income taxes on a substantial sum of money, contributing to an excess in his campaign fund.

The governor had used a substantial amount of it to build for himself and family a neat and spacious summer cottage. He also purchased a family houseboat, a mink coat for his wife and other things.

Mr. Stratton won his case on the argument that the expenditure was really political because it provided ceremonial necessities, and also on the testimony of Senator Dirksen. Dirksen said it is customary for non-earmarked political contributions to be spent at the discretion of the favored candidate. This definition is observed generally by both political parties. It means that a candidate does not return unspent campaign funds to the contributors, but can lay them by for future campaigns or just plain keep them.

The public is not too greatly concerned about the tax angle, but it does see a serious flaw in the accounting practices and the lack of full reporting of campaign contributions. It provides a way for a contributor to reward a public official far beyond his campaign needs in return for attitudes or actions favorable to the contributor and in that sense it is a corrupting force.

The situation indicates we need a full disclosure law and a public accounting of what is ultimately done with the money.

Water Fight Is On

The speed at which Nebraska's water problem is coming to the fore is, to the uninitiated, an unprecedented and unexpected event.

Nebraska has, since the beginning, felt that it had more than enough water for any contingency. And even today it has only begun conservation measures and it is still wasting water like a profligate.

Perhaps the biggest error has been in the definition of "plenty." Plenty is a relative term. It exists when demand is less than the supply. But the same plenty can become a shortage when it is exceeded by demand. Our old term of plenty began before irrigation, before industrialization and before the greatly increased domestic and municipal demand.

The issue broke Monday in the legislature during consideration of a proposed amendment to Nebraska's historic water policy. The amendment was offered by Sen. Gerdes who is seeking to relieve a municipal water problem at Chadron by relaxing the restrictions on land condemnation at some distance from a municipality in order to tap ground water supplies. It brought on the question whether anyone should have exclusive right to water. Irrigating farmers are protesting the inroads of municipalities, tapping ground water sources at the expense of cropping. Resistance came from Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice who pointed out that his city had pledged adequate water to new industries that are being built there. He pointed out that industrial development will end if industrial use is kept at the bottom of the priority list, behind domestic and agricultural use. Beatrice is currently having difficulty in obtaining a greater supply of water because of the resistance of well irrigators.

So the fight for water is well outlined. But it is premature, at least in eastern Nebraska. Reservoirs on our running streams would meet our requirements for years to come.

Attorney General Not Pushy Sort

WASHINGTON — The man whom President Johnson relies on to handle the bitter civil rights turmoil in Alabama and who has drafted a new voting rights bill for the South is a mild-mannered, very firm lawyer who got his job by not pushing.

Nicholas Katzenbach has been in the Justice Department since the first days of the Kennedy administration, and up until fairly recently, when kicking pickets were dragged from the hallway outside his office, the country at large had not heard much about him.

He got his job through just the opposite tactics used by most job seekers—being unobtrusive.

When Bobby Kennedy bowed out as attorney general, he asked LBJ to continue Katzenbach until after the election so he could establish himself in private law practice to better advantage later. Johnson thought it was only fair to honor the request of a retiring cabinet member and told Kennedy he would keep Katzenbach as acting attorney general until after the inauguration.

On inauguration day, the President had a talk with his acting attorney general, asked him what he wanted to do. Katzenbach replied he would like to stay in government service. He said he liked government service and would be glad to stay on and do anything that came along.

The President told him that Central Intelligence was open, since John McCone was leaving. How would he like that?

"If my President asks me to serve I'll be glad to serve—any place," replied the attorney general.

The President told Nick he would think it over and be in touch with him. Later Mr. and Mrs. Katzenbach came to dinner—a farewell for retiring Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges. Mrs. Johnson liked Mrs. Katzenbach, found her a lady of charm and courtesy.

So, a week or so later, the President invited the Katzenbachs to come over for dinner privately. They didn't sit down until 10 p.m., the usual hour when the President dines. He is busy at his desk until that time almost every evening.

At the end of the dinner the President said, "How would you like to stay on and be my lawyer?"

"I would like to do anything you want me to do," replied Katzenbach. "If it's all right with you I'd like to have a young fellow named Ramsey Clark be your deputy," suggested the President. He recalled that Katzenbach had previously told him he thought well of Ramsey, the son of Justice Tom Clark.

That was the end of the conversation. Later the President confided to an associate that he had been impressed with the fact that Katzenbach never pressured him, was willing to take any job at all. That was the deciding factor in his appointment.

As a Christian and as chairman of the Board of First Christian Church, I would be remiss in my duties if I failed to voice a strong protest concerning the removal of the body of a young colored child recently. The statement that it was an "honest mistake" is one which I cannot comprehend.

The only possibility for an honest mistake would be in the fact that the family could purchase a lot in any section. How, then, could it be possible to inter and then when it was found the family was colored find that a "mistake" had been made? To brazenly move the remains without consulting or

If the policy is one of non-segregation, why should he know one way or the other? I will not use such an unfortunate incident as this to prolong the agony of the family in their bereavement. However, as a friend of the family, I cannot sit silently by to this injustice.

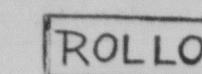

I would ask Mr. Williamson to explain his statement: "We moved it over to the section where we thought it should be . . . the spot where it belonged." I would also like to know how many other bodies have been moved because Mr. Williamson thought they belonged in another spot.

This incident is a very cruel one for the family but I hope they take heart and do not "sweep it under the rug," as many injustices against them and against me have been done.

Day Center Is Immediate Hit

By ROBERT PETERSON

One day in 1942 some public welfare workers in the Bronx, N.Y., were discussing needs related to the growing number of elders wandering the streets, sitting in parks or visiting welfare offices for want of anything better to do.

In the group was Harry Levine—a quiet, scholarly man in his early 40s wearing horn-rimmed glasses.

"Older people seem to be the forgotten generation," he mused. "Can't we give them a place to go and new interests to brighten their days and prevent their deterioration?"

Just what, someone asked skeptically, did he suggest? With the spontaneity with which great ideas are sometimes born, Levine jumped to his feet and said, "Let's take over that old city warehouse down the street and turn it into a day center for older people!"

This was the genesis of day centers for older people. When I talked with Levine recently he recalled how the group got approval to take over the warehouse and how they pitched in and renovated the quarters. That original center was opened in April, 1943, and was called the William Hodson Center in memory of a former welfare commissioner.

It was clear from the beginning that this was just what older people wanted and needed—a place to go from 9 to 5 to serve as a substitute for former work routines.

Levine, who is now retired, related that New York City now has 38 free day centers for folks past 60, and that the day center concept has spread to major cities throughout the world.

After 22 years at the old location, famed Hodson Center was moved last fall to spanking new quarters adjacent to a housing development at 1330 Webster Avenue, Bronx, N.Y. Entering the modern glass and brick, one-story building you go past the offices of four full-time workers, and then into the activity areas which serve some 1,100 registered members who use the center regularly.

There's a big woodworking room, well-lighted and fully-equipped with benches and tools. There's a sunny arts and crafts hall where members can try their hand and receive instruction in a string of pursuits from ceramics and sculpture to jewelry-making and painting.

There's an inviting, sleek auditorium seating 500 people which is used for lectures, concerts, games and dancing. There's a restaurant where members can buy simple food items at cost, such as coffee for five cents, soup for a dime and a hot luncheon dish for a quarter.

Two retired barbers man a shop and charge 50 cents for a haircut. And there's a thrift shop where elders can buy good used clothing at rockbottom prices.

Geriatric history will likely hail the day center concept as this century's most effective technique for serving the needs of large numbers of older people.

Not only do such centers provide elders with an attractive, stimulating place to go during the day, but they contribute vitally to the mental and physical health of the individual. They can also be operated so inexpensively as to cost the individual taxpayer only pennies per year.

Cigarette Tax Increase Earmark Ban Prepared

Elgin Sen. William Wylie revealed Monday he has prepared an amendment to the controversial cigarette tax hike bill that would remove all of its earmarking provisions.

His amendment could set the stage for another go-around on the measure's earmarking provisions which have stirred heated debate on the legislative floor on three previous occasions.

The bill, LB26, has been advanced from select file and ordinarily would show up next for final passage.

If Sen. Wylie's proposed amendment is to be considered, legislators must agree to return the bill to select file for possible alteration. The question is expected to come up Tuesday.

As presently drawn, LB26 calls for a two cent per package increase in the cigarette tax, from six to eight cents, with 35% of the added revenue going to complete the educational television network, 35% to match federal soil and water conservation funds to develop municipal parks and recreation areas, and 30% to build roads to recreation areas.

The two-cent hike would yield some $6 million in the next biennium.

Under Wylie's amendment, all money realized from the two cent hike would be returned to the general fund where, he said, "It really belongs."

"I generally am opposed to earmarking and particularly in this instance," Wylie said. "But I do feel enough money should be allocated to complete the educational television system in the next biennium."

Wylie said he will ask each member of the Budget Committee to announce publicly on the floor whether they intend to recommend that enough money be appropriated to complete the ETV system in the next two years.

Federal Aid Information Bill Passed

A bill making the Legislative Council a clearing house for information on federal aid available to the state of Nebraska and its political subdivisions was passed on final reading Monday and goes next to Gov. Frank Morrison for signature into law.

Approved 47-1, LB36 makes it a duty of the Legislative Council to study federal aid and advise the Legislature of money, land or buildings available from the federal government, matching funds necessary, grants and aids available and what new legislation would be needed to utilize them.

The bill was introduced by Sens. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff and Marvin E. Stromer of Lincoln. Only Sen. Sam Klaver of Omaha opposed the bill on final reading.

Other bills passed Monday (Emergency clause): LB326—Providing that in forcible entry and detainer proceedings in Omaha and Lincoln Municipal courts, the court or jury shall inquire into the amount of rent owing the plaintiff and amount of damage caused by the defendant to the premises while he was occupying them. (Foster) (45-0).

Safety Emblems Bill Is Advanced

Vehicles which customarily travel slower than 25 miles an hour will be required after Jan. 1, 1967 to carry an emblem on the rear identifying them as slow moving vehicles under a bill given 37-1 first round floor approval in the Legislature Monday.

The National Safety Council has devised such a standard emblem which it seeks to have used in all states.

The safety measure enrolling Nebraska in the program was introduced as LB153 by Sen. William Wylie of Elgin.

The State Department of Roads, which has an estimated 2,000 slow moving vehicles, including road graders and such, has estimated it would cost $19,734 in the coming biennium to equip them with the emblems.

Other bills advanced from general file Monday:

LB388—Providing that fees must be paid before a boiler inspection certificate is issued.

LB389—Permitting the towing to its place of destination of a motor vehicle which has become disabled while traveling on the Interstate Highway.

Water Well Legislation Is Debated On Unicam Floor

Water well legislation in which the cities of Chadron and Beatrice have particular interest stirred discussion on the legislative floor Monday on the general subject of industry versus agriculture in water use.

Laid over for later consideration was LB376, a bill by Alliance Sen. George Gerdes to extend the eminent domain powers of first and second class cities and villages to include water wells.

Gerdes, to pacify agriculture interests, proposed an amendment to specify that the wells must provide water "for domestic use."

This brought Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice to his feet to point out that his community already has contracted to sell water to a part of multi-million dollar fertilizer plants outside the city limits.

He said Beatrice is trying to purchase a narrow strip of ground for the drilling of additional wells. Under the amendment if adopted, Beatrice could not sell water to the two giant industries, he said.

Long-standing Nebraska policy gives first priority in water use to domestic purposes, then to agriculture and thirdly to industry.

"If we are in no position to guarantee industry adequate water, which is one of the things that we have boasted about," said Carstens, "we are going to kill that industry because they cannot operate without water."

Sen. Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth arose to question how a drawdown from new Beatrice city wells to meet the fertilizer plant need will affect the irrigation pool from which farmers in the area draw water. Who would farmers turn to for relief if their irrigation wells dry up, he wondered.

Gerdes stressed the need for speed on Chadron's behalf.

He said Chadron has nearly exhausted its current water supply and must obtain new sources. Test wells already are being dug, he said.

If Chadron doesn't get water soon and drought conditions persist, "the whole town is going to have to move out," Gerdes said.

Charges that the State Normal Board and Kearney State College defied the Legislature by building the outer shell of an over-all science building instead of a self-contained first unit were aired on the floor of the Legislature Monday.

Sen. Chester Paxton of Thedford said the college had put a "shotgun at the back" of the Legislature, forcing it to provide additional money for the structure.

At issue was the Budget Committee's request to introduce a bill appropriating $1,250,000 to complete and furnish the science building.

Action was deferred for a check with the attorney general on whether the bill constituted a deficiency appropriation to be met with funds from the present biennium, or represented an advance draft on building funds from the next biennium.

Sen. Richard Lysinger of Ravenna said passage of the bill in advance of the regular budget bill is sought so that application can be made yet this month for $182,000 in federal funds available, and so that the building can be completed by the fall of 1966.

Floor speeches brought out this background:

The 1963 Legislature appropriated $500,000 from special building levy funds to build the first unit of the Kearney State science building.

Architects and contractors subsequently advised the Normal Board that money could be saved by using the one-half million dollars to build the outer shell for the entire $1,750,000 structure.

Without obtaining necessary permission to divert the funds, the Normal Board went ahead with the shell.

Sen. Elvin Adamson of Valentine said that to make the change, the college needed approval of the governor and Executive Board, but there is no evidence that such permission was obtained.

Nearly a dozen senators joined in the discussion.

Nobody questioned Kearney State's need for a science building.

Sen. Cecil Craft of North Platte said the old science facilities at Kearney State were less adequate than those he had as a high school student. But he noted that the college built a huge field house ahead of the science building at a time when the Normal Board had carte blanche to spend building funds as it wished. He said the matter "only points up that the Legislature should take the responsibility and say, 'you will put this money here.'"

Sen. Lysinger said the only reason for the special bill at this time is to permit a start which will complete the science building by the fall term of 1966, and forestall delaying its use until the fall of 1967.

Committees Are Hoping To Finish Hearings By May

Standing committees of the Legislature are hoping to complete their bill hearings by May 1, speaker Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud reported Monday.

He made the comment while obtaining legislative permission to reassign some bills from one committee to another with a view to equalizing the committee load.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff also proposed informally that the Legislature begin holding Thursday evening sessions to expedite the movement of bills stacked up on general file, where measures receive first floor debate.

He said he plans to make a motion to that effect later.

We Can Arrange All The Details

Whenever the need arises a great distance from home, Lincoln families should call us first. We are fully prepared to resolve all the details, and can save the family additional expense and undue concern.

We learned something from the big boys.

We're not above borrowing a good idea when we see one.

And the idea of a station wagon with all the virtues of a bus was too good to resist.

Which is why the Volkswagen Station Wagon has so much in common with other buses.

The driver is way up front, so he can see where he's going.

The engine is in back, out of the way.

There are windows all around (21) including the skylight kind on top.

The seats are chair-high. And you can even have an aisle to step to the rear.

The Volkswagen Station Wagon has a bit less headroom than a real bus, but it has more doors (5 in all) and a sunroof that slides back for lots of air and lots of view.

There's so much room inside the VW, you may think you're driving the real thing.

But not when you park; the VW Wagon is only 9 inches longer than the VW Sedan.

Lately, we've spotted a few other bus-type station wagons on the scene.

So maybe things have worked out evenly after all.

The big boys learned something from us.

stituted a deficiency appropriation to be met with funds from the present biennium, or represented an advance draft on building funds from the next biennium.
Sen. Richard Lysinger of Ravenna said passage of the bill in advance of the regular budget bill is sought so that application can be made yet this month for $192,000 in federal funds available, and so that the building can be completed by the fall of 1966.

Floor speeches brought out this background:
The 1963 Legislature appropriated $500,000 from special building levy funds to build the first unit of the Kearney State science building.
Architects and contractors subsequently advised the Normal Board that money could be saved by using the one-half million dollars to build the outer shell for the entire $1,750,000 structure.
Without obtaining necessary permission to divert the funds, the Normal Board went ahead with the shell.

Sen. Elvin Adamson of Valentine said that to make the change, the college needed approval of the governor and Executive Board, but there is no evidence that such permission was obtained.
Nearly a dozen senators joined in the discussion.
Nobody questioned Kearney State's need for a science building.
Sen. Cecil Craft of North Platte said the old science facilities at Kearney State were less adequate than those he had as a high school student. But he noted that the college built a huge field house ahead of the science building at a time when the Normal Board had carte blanche to spend building funds as it wished. He said the matter "only points up that the Legislature should take the responsibility and say, 'you will put this money here.'"

Committees Are Hoping To Finish Hearings By May

Standing committees of the Legislature are hoping to complete their bill hearings by May 1, speaker Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud reported Monday.

He made the comment while obtaining legislative permission to reassign some bills from one committee to another with a view to equalizing the committee load.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff also proposed informally that the Legislature begin holding Thursday evening sessions to expedite the movement of bills stacked up on general file, where measures receive first floor debate.

He said he plans to make a motion to that effect later.

We Can Arrange
All The Details

Whenever the need arises a great distance from home, Lincoln families should call us first. We are fully prepared to resolve all the details, and can save the family additional expense and undue concern.

We learned something from the big boys.

We're not above borrowing a good idea when we see one.

And the idea of a station wagon with all the virtues of a bus was too good to resist.

Which is why the Volkswagen Station Wagon has so much in common with other buses.

The driver is way up front, so he can see where he's going.

The engine is in back, out of the way.

There are windows all around (21) including the skylight kind on top.

The seats are chair-high. And you can even have an aisle to step to the rear.

The Volkswagen Station Wagon has a bit less headroom than a real bus, but it has more doors (5 in all) and a sunroof that slides back for lots of air and lots of view.

There's so much room inside the VW, you may think you're driving the real thing.

But not when you park; the VW Wagon is only 9 inches longer than the VW Sedan.

Lately, we've spotted a few other bus-type station wagons on the scene.

So maybe things have worked out evenly after all.

The big boys learned something from us.

Examiners Report On 5 Osteopath Schools Set

A board of examiners report on five osteopathic colleges may be ready for consideration by the State Board of Health at its April 13 meeting.

This was indicated in the health board's meeting Friday when a liaison subcommittee was named to hold two executive meetings during March with the examining and inspection team members.

Dr. E. A. Rogers, state health director, said board members named to the committee were Dr. Louis W. Gilbert and Dr. Loyal Payne of Lincoln and Dr. Howard Yost of Grand Island.

Approval of the colleges makes their recent graduates eligible to take the state's medical licensing examination for admission to full practice in Nebraska as osteopathic physicians and surgeons.

The inspected colleges are located in Philadelphia, Kansas City, Chicago, Des Moines, and Kirksville, Mo.

The health board must act on an inspection report by a May deadline under 1963 legislation.

In other action, T. A. Filipi, environmental health director, told the board every effort is being made to have Omaha set up a temporary treatment facility for grease and their refuse going into the Missouri River from 19 packing companies.

In a test last December, the department determined 241,000 pounds of grease was being discharged into the river, causing water pollution problems downstream at St. Joseph.

Filipi said some temporary facility should be set up as a stop-gap measure until proposed Omaha treatment plant expansion is completed in two years or so.

He also reported Omaha is considering an ordinance requiring packers to trap at least 80% of the grease as a possible anti-pollution move.

Filipi said grease balls are forming on the water intake at St. Joseph.

National Youth Group To Meet Here In April

Nebraska's Committee for Children and Youth (NCCY) heard reports from each of its resource, legislative and special subcommittees and the Nebraska Council of Youth here Monday during its fourth annual meeting, highlighted by the keynote address of Dr. Don Clifton of the University of Nebraska.

Mrs. Clifford Jorgensen, NCCY chairman, opened the session attended by nearly 150 members with the announcement that the National Council of State Committees for Children and Youth will hold its annual meeting in Lincoln April 28-29.

Dr. Clifton congratulated the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth for what he called "developing leadership among the state's youth, for making youth councils possible and for beginning to listen to youth. "We must place emphasis on the positive behavior of youth," he declared.

Clifton, associate professor of history and principles of educational psychology and measurements, said "The future of people depends not so much on their material resources and industrial capacity but on how much they value their youth."

"Our youth have never been tried so much," declared Clifton, "We tempt them and then forbid them as never before."

Consultant

Resource subcommittee reports included:

—Health—Recommendations that a special consultant in health, recreation and physical education be established in either the State Health or Education Departments; that the Cancer Society be used to promote youth education through schools on the hazards of smoking; that more students and schools be encouraged to enter the existing driver training program; that a program of blood screening of all new-born infants be implemented; and that mental health be promoted.

—Recreation—Recommendation that a state recreation consultant be established in the extension division of the University of Nebraska.

—Spiritual Development—Report on studies to help young people establish standards including the role of churches and parents and on the concern of rural youth migration to urban centers.

—Welfare—Recognition that the present need is to be concerned with explanations of welfare funds and services that are available and obtain public understanding of what welfare agencies are attempting to do.

Two Areas

—Economic Opportunities—Report on two areas of concern: child labor laws and minimum wage and economic opportunities open to youth.

—Juvenile Problems—Recommendation that all county judges and state legislators be required to attend both state training schools and the children's home in Lincoln; that the follow-up services be improved for children who have been identified at an early age as problem youth; and that a network of community resources be established to make more effective use of welfare departments.

Bill Re-Enacting Credit Law Clears Banking Committee

The Legislature's Banking Committee Monday approved and sent to the floor a bill re-enacting the special credit union law with its 12% interest rate.

The bill, LB414, is one of a string which the committee has under consideration, re-enacting the various special interest laws now on the books.

All such laws have been under something of a cloud ever since the State Supreme Court

Tentative Accord Reached In Work Feud At Beatrice

Beatrice (AP)—A tentative agreement was reached late Monday evening to halt a work stoppage at the new Phillips Petroleum Company fertilizer plant near Beatrice.

Harold Robertson, owner of Robertson Construction Company, said he had offered to withdraw his contract involving construction of a small building at the plant. Robertson, who employs non-union workers said Phillips had tentatively agreed to his offer.

Pickets from Laborers Local 1140 appeared on the site Monday. The pickets said that they protested the use of non-union workers on the project. Other workers honored the picket line.

held unconstitutional the installment sales acts passed by the Legislature in 1961 and 1963.

Last November, however, the voters of Nebraska approved a constitutional amendment permitting special interest legislation, and the various lenders involved have introduced bills at the current session to re-enact the old laws now that the constitutional roadblock has been removed thereby eliminating any danger of further challenge.

The action on LB414 may indicate that the committee is inclined to re-enact all the special lending laws rather than push for a comprehensive new time sales-interest structure.

The alternative would be enactment of something like Sen. Arnold Ruhnke's LB218, which retains the nine percent usury limit and the 30% maximum small loan law, but creates a new 12% category covering other loans and installment sales.

Ready To Act

The committee has been holding the various interest bills until all have been heard, but now is ready to act on them.

The committee advanced 7-1 LB530, calling for the regulating and licensing of private firms other than banks who are in the business of selling checks and money orders.

Held were:

LB422—authorizing state and local governments to purchase motor vehicle liability insurance for their employees.

LB421—permitting state, school district and municipalities to invest surplus funds in bank certificates of deposit.

Committee Kills Bill Cutting Taxes On Production Credit Associations

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Revenue Committee axed 5-2 a bill proposing to reduce the intangible-tax rate on production credit associations from eight to four mills per dollar on gross earnings.

Introduced by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, LB465 also proposed banks for cooperatives be included in this rate.

Lincoln Attorney Robert Guenzel, representing the Nebraska Co-op Council, said the measure would put the production credit associations on "relatively the same tax footing" as commercial banks.

He estimated the tax revenue loss as only $14,000 to the state, but urged "the bill is of major importance as a matter of principle."

He said the existing bank for cooperatives in the state may come under state jurisdiction after 1968.

The committee held LB696 proposing a constitutional amendment that would exempt from taxation property owned by religious societies and not held for investment or profit.

Sen. Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont asked the bill be held after hearing pending outcome of anticipated judicial decisions on whether church parsonages are exempt or not.

The committee was told the bill is to clarify the tax-exempt status of parsonages if court decisions are unfavorable and submit the constitutional question to the voters in November, 1966.

$1 Million In Corporation Tax Hike Seen

Revenue Chairman Jules Burbach of Crofton said Monday that Nebraska would gain a million dollars from increased corporation occupation taxes during the 1965-67 biennium from LB42 now pending on the floor of the Legislature.

The bill, amended by the Revenue Committee earlier this month, would boost the old 1913 range with a maximum of $2,500 to a new top of $8,250 for domestic and domesticated foreign corporations and double the single rate on foreign corporations to a $9,000 maximum.

Burbach said information compiled by the secretary of state's office showed $431,596 collected during 1964.

The anticipated corporation occupation tax (annual fees) under LB42 as amended would be $926,325 annually or a gain of approximately $1 million for the biennium.

Burbach said he felt the amended bill with a $9,000 maximum for foreign corporations will be enacted by the Legislature.

The bill was amended by the committee during the early March hearing to remove some objectionable features of the bill. It was introduced by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

BROWN APPOINTMENT MEETS OPPOSITION

Gov. Frank Morrison's appointment of Richard D. Brown of Holdrege to the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds ran up against a bit of legislative opposition Monday.

The Unicameral's Committee on Committees voted 6-1 to recommend that the full Legislature confirm the appointment, but seven affirmative votes were needed. Four members of the committee were present but did not vote. The committee will consider

Brown's appointment again at a later date.

Brown also is secretary of the Nebraska State School Boards Association and a lobbyist for the association. At a public hearing before the Committee on Committees Monday, Brown was asked whether there was a conflict of interest. He said he didn't feel there was.

The committee recommended that the Legislature confirm the appointments of Charles O'Rourke of Omaha to the Board of Educational Lands and Funds, and George Buglewicz of Omaha to the Governor's Advisory Committee to the Department of Institutions and Public Welfare.

The Legislature's Revenue Committee axed 5-2 a bill proposing to reduce the in-lieu-of-intangible-tax rate on production credit associations from eight to four mills per dollar on gross earnings.

Introduced by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, LB465 also proposed banks for cooperatives be included in this rate.

Lincoln Attorney Robert Guenzel, representing the Nebraska Co-op Council, said the measure would put the production credit associations on "relatively the same tax footing" as commercial banks.

He estimated the tax revenue loss as only $14,000 to the state, but urged "the bill is of major importance as a matter of principle."

He said the existing bank for cooperatives in the state may come under state jurisdiction after 1968.

The committee held LB696 proposing a constitutional amendment that would exempt from taxation property owned by religious societies and not held for investment or profit.

Sen. Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont asked the bill be held after hearing pending outcome of anticipated judicial decisions on whether church parsonages are exempt or not.

The committee was told the bill is to clarify the tax-exempt status of parsonages if court decisions are unfavorable and submit the constitutional question to the voters in November, 1966.

$1 Million In Corporation Tax Hike Seen

Revenue Chairman Jules Burbach of Crofton said Monday that Nebraska would gain a million dollars from increased corporation occupation taxes during the 1965-67 biennium from LB42 now pending on the floor of the Legislature.

The bill, amended by the Revenue Committee earlier this month, would boost the old 1913 range with a maximum of $2,500 to a new top of $8,250 for domestic and domesticated foreign corporations and double the single rate on foreign corporations to a $9,000 maximum.

Burbach said information compiled by the secretary of state's office showed $431,996 collected during 1964.

The anticipated corporation occupation tax (annual fees) under LB42 as amended would be $926,325 annually or a gain of approximately $1 million for the biennium.

Burbach said he felt the amended bill with a $9,000 maximum for foreign corporations will be enacted by the Legislature.

The bill was amended by the committee during the early March hearing to remove some objectionable features of the bill. It was introduced by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

BROWN APPOINTMENT MEETS OPPOSITION

Gov. Frank Morrison's appointment of Richard D. Brown of Holdrege to the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds ran up against a bit of legislative opposition Monday.

The Unicameral's Committee on Committees voted 6-1 to recommend that the full Legislature confirm the appointment, but seven affirmative votes were needed. Four members of the committee were present but did not vote. The committee will consider

Brown's appointment again at a later date.

Brown also is secretary of the Nebraska State School Boards Association and a lobbyist for the association. At a public hearing before the Committee on Committees Monday, Brown was asked whether there was a conflict of interest. He said he didn't feel there was.

The committee recommended that the Legislature confirm the appointments of Charles O'Rourke of Omaha to the Board of Educational Lands and Funds, and George Buglewicz of Omaha to the Governor's Advisory Committee to the Department of Institutions and Public Welfare.

Minimum Pay For Police, Firemen Altered, Advanced

In its present form, the measure, LB137, sets a minimum salary of $350 a month for policemen and firemen employed by cities of more than 10,000 population.

Just Thursday, the Legislature approved an amendment to the bill which set the minimum at $400 a month, but made it apply only to cities of more than 40,000, or Omaha and Lincoln.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff offered Monday's amendment and it passed on a 29-5 vote without debate. Voting against the Carpenter compromise were Sens. Clifton Batchelder of Omaha, Cecil Craft of North Platte, Chester Paxton of Theedford and Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont.

Bills Hiking Gas, Beer Taxes Advanced By Senators

Bills to increase the state tax on gasoline and on beer were routinely advanced from select file in the Legislature Monday and if the usual pattern is followed, will show up next for final passage.

The beer tax would be hiked from six to eight cents a gallon under LB27.

The gas tax would be increased from 7 to 7½ cents per gallon under LB25, with 80% of the added revenue going to cities for street purposes, and the remaining 20% to counties.

It is extremely snooty. Powered by perpetual motion status symbols. And is supposed to have more high-priced party girls than any place in the world.

This is one of the beating hearts of Los Angeles. The Southern California city — (soon to pass Tokyo and become the biggest city in the world)—has multiple hearts to service its quivering ganglia. The city began quite simply on September 4, 1781 with the arrival of a group of Spanish settlers.

They named it "The Town of Our Lady the Queen of the Angels" — which has now been shortened to "L.A."

The first recorded incident I find is that of a Spanish soldier who was fooling around with one of the Indian party girls.

Her husband uttered a few war whoops. Whereupon the Spanish G.I. shot him squarely in the brisket. A ratio of love to gunpowder which exists occasionally to this ever-loving day.

The city presently is zeroed in on "culture" — I'm not knocking it: just telling you. The word waters the newspapers—particularly the culture-minded Los Angeles Times. It appears frequently in local slick-paper magazines. And in those elegant books you find in the drawer beside your hotel bed.

It is applied to the impressive Music Center. The concerts in the Hollywood Bowl. And quite often to society which puts up the money. And you can't get more cultured than that.

The great culture race spills over into San Francisco. 450 miles to the north, which is beginning to worry about its culture.

The Strip has taken over the glamor that used to belong to Hollywood boulevard.

(Where there was once a law prohibiting you from driving sheep down the middle of the street).

At Least 20 Artists Remove Works From Annual Governor's Art Show

Omaha (AP)—Artists protesting the selection of the winning entry in the Governor's Art Show removed at least 20 paintings from the Crossroads arcade Monday.

Two judges selected the entry of Ward Douglas Schumaker, a senior art student at the University of Omaha. But officials of the Crossroads Merchants Association, sponsor of the show, conferred with Gov. Frank Morrison over the weekend and decided the picture was not appropriate for hanging in the governor's mansion.

The first prize then was given to a painting by Fred Somers, another Omaha University art student. Protesting artists removed their paintings from the exhibit as the award presentation breakfast began Monday.

One of the leaders of the protesting artists, Thomas Bartek, exhibition director of Joslyn Art Museum said Monday afternoon "the main issue in this affair is whether the artist in this state and community can be treated as a professional with something of real value to contribute to the community or whether he is to be treated with polite condescension as he has in the past."

Bartek was one of the first to remove his painting. Crossroads officials said they did not know what they would do with Schumaker's painting which they purchased for $425, $25 more than what the young artist would have received had he been given the first prize.

Schumaker said he wished he had not signed the controversial agreement and accepted the $425 paid for his picture, but he needed the money. He said his rendition, inspired by the Michelangelo painting in the Sistine Chapel in Rome, was a short on an X-ray version of a figure.

The governor suggested that the winner be selected next year by a vote of public viewers.

Fire Department spokesman said the fire was probably caused by a backfire from the carburetor. The damage was confined to the car.

ETV Aid Application For State Accepted

Washington (AP)—The application of the Nebraska Educational Television Committee of Lincoln for $100,000 in aid under the Federal Aid Program for Educational Television Broadcast facilities has been accepted, the Welfare Department has announced. The aid requested is to activate channel 16 at Omaha. Total cost is estimated at $215,949.

Wheat Along South Border Greening Up

Nebraska's winter wheat crop is beginning to green along the southern border of the state, government crop observers reported Monday.

The State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics added, however, that since the majority of the crop is in the dormant stage, the extent of winter kill damage cannot be determined at this time.

"There is some concern about possible damage from large patches of ice on fields in the east and there was wind erosion damage to wheat in fields on lighter soils in the Panhandle area again last week," the division said.

Stands of wheat are generally good in areas outside of the Panhandle, but moisture supplies are short.

On the bright side, the division said heavy snow accumulations in mountain areas should result in sufficient gains in reservoir storage to adequately handle irrigation needs this summer.

Wet conditions continue to delay field operations, but the mild weather has permitted more preparation of machinery for field work.

Feeding and care of livestock was somewhat easier last week under the mild weather. Feed lots in eastern Nebraska have been extremely muddy and feeding operations there have been difficult.

Livestock production rates through the winter were generally good except for short periods of stormy weather. The seasonal arrival of newborn livestock appears to be proceeding normally.

Car Tax Stickers For Non-Resident Drivers Available

Non-resident vehicle tax stickers can now be obtained at the city treasurer's office, according to City Finance Director James Mallon.

Mallon said the stickers, for people who don't have their cars registered in Lincoln but use city streets, cost $6.

The stickers are being issued so that the public will know that some motorists have paid the city's wheel tax even though not legally obligated, he said.

Mallon added, "We hope that they will encourage more persons to join in and help pay for the streets they are using."

The finance director also pointed out that the city isn't issuing stickers to Lincoln residents because of their large number and the convenience in not requiring them to use the sticker method.

Humphrey Terms Selma Violence 'U.S. Tragedy'

Chicago (UPI)—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said Monday the racial violence of the last two weeks in Selma, Ala., was "a shame" and "the American tragedy."

Humphrey pledged that Congress and the administration will "see to it that those persons who claim American citizenship . . . are going to have the right, and the right to exercise the right, without a lot of gimmicks, a lot of impediments."

Farmers Union Seeks 'A Fair Share Of Income'

Chicago (UPI)—The National Farmers Union Monday studied proposals calling for federal legislation to provide farm families with "a fair share of the nation's income."

Delegates attending the 63rd annual convention of the organization will vote Wednesday on the proposals, contained in an 11,000-word policy statement and a short "target program" for 1965.

The proposals will not become official until they are approved by the rank-and-file.

The key recommendations included:

Partly of Income—"Federal farm and international policies and programs should be utilized to the maximum to insure that the families who operate family farms in our nation can earn and get a fairly income."

Improve Existing Programs—"The nation should build upon the successful features of the existing farm programs to develop measures which will attain parity income for family farmers as quickly as humanly possible."

Family Farm—"It calls for government operated credit programs to help farm operators own the farms they operate and strengthen farm land ownership and farm operation by families."

Direct Payments—"Production payments such as have proved workable in feed grains, wheat, wool, cotton and sugar should be relied upon to a greater extent in new farm legislation to increase farm income and should be extended to other commodities."

Huskerville Boy Bitten By Dog; Animal Sought

Police and Humane Society workers were looking for a white, long-haired dog which bit Steven C. Holland, 8, Monday evening.

Young Holland told police that he was riding his bicycle near Bud's Market, 3rd and Court in Huskerville, when the dog came running up and bit him on the calf of the right leg. The boy told police the dog then took off "running south."

The boy was treated at the Lincoln Air Force Base hospital and released.

If the dog is not found within ten days it may be necessary to start the child on the very painful series of rabies shots, authorities indicated. Police believe the dog may be a Collie.

At Least 20 Artists Remove Works From Annual Governor's Art Show

Omaha (P)—Artists protesting the selection of the winning entry in the Governor's Art Show removed at least 20 paintings from the Crossroads arcade Monday.

Two judges selected the entry of Ward Douglas Schumaker, a senior art student at the University of Omaha. But officials of the Crossroads Merchants Association, sponsor of the show, conferred with Gov. Frank Morrison over the weekend and decided the picture was not appropriate for hanging in the governor's mansion.

The first prize then was given to a painting by Fred Somers, another Omaha University art student. Protesting artists removed their paintings from the exhibit as the award presentation breakfast began Monday.

One of the leaders of the protesting artists, Thomas Bartek, exhibition director of Joslyn Art Museum said Monday afternoon "the main issue in this state and community can be treated as a professional with something of real value to contribute to the community or whether he is to be treated with polite condescension as he has in the past."

Flames Hit Car In Auditorium

A 1965 model car was damaged considerably when it caught fire in the basement of Pershing Auditorium Monday morning.

Fire Department spokesman said the fire was probably caused by a backfire from the carburetor. The damage was confined to the car.

The aid requested is to activate channel 16 at Omaha. Total cost is estimated at $215,949.

Bartek was one of the artists who did not know what they would do with Schumaker's painting which they purchased for $425, $25 more than what the young artist would have received had he been given the first prize.

Crossroads officials said they did not know what they would do with Schumaker's painting which they purchased for $425, $25 more than what the young artist would have received had he been given the first prize.

Shumaker said he wished he had not signed the controversial agreement and accepted the $425 paid for his picture, but he needed the money. He said his rendition, inspired by the Michelangelo painting in the Sistine Chapel in Rome, was a short on an X-ray version of a figure.

The governor suggested that the winner be selected next year by a vote of public viewers.

Non-resident vehicle tax stickers can now be obtained at the city treasurer's office, according to City Finance Director James Mallon.

Mallon said the stickers, for people who don't have their cars registered in Lincoln but use city streets, cost $6. The stickers are being issued so that the public will know that some motorists have paid the city's wheel tax even though not legally obligated, he said.

a convention of the National Farmers Union to talk about the racial situation in Alabama.

Thirty members of the Congress of Racial Equality camped in the lobby of the convention hotel, hoping to present demands for federal intervention on the voting rights issue to the vice president. But Humphrey walked out of the hotel, behind a Secret Service and police guard, without talking with the group.

Ag Abundance Cited

Humphrey told an estimated 2,500 NFU delegates that the nation's agricultural abundance is one of its greatest "assets of strength." He said that America's greatest challenge of the future is meeting the rising food demands of a burgeoning world population with money in its pockets.

Humphrey told the farmers that they "must have felt in the last several days, as our President felt, the shame from incidents in Selma, Ala."

Referring to events in Selma, Humphrey said "if any government anywhere can deny one man the right to vote—if any government anywhere can use brutality on any of its citizens—then that government can do it to you."

In his regularly scheduled speech, Humphrey pledged the administration would see to it that farmers get equitable returns for the key roles they play in keeping the United States strong and the world fed.

NFU President James G. Patton said in an address that the administration's war on poverty is "far too small." Patton also expressed fears that it was not putting enough emphasis on old people and rural residents.

On Monday evening, March 22, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Walt and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stephens will compliment Miss Lilly and her fiancé when they entertain at dinner.

keep suburban activity at high peak

From a look at all of the activity in Suburbia this morning and after observing the fair weather existing the last couple of days, we would have you know that "complaining" is going out of style.

With the exit of complaining enters a wish—may bad weather become completely out-moded, at least until next winter.

Warmer weather is being anticipated with delight among families. Already we have heard of plans for picnics, outdoor barbecuing, and other such activities.

KIMBERLY HEIGHTS

Farewells were said to Mrs. William Matter last Friday evening when eight neighborhood ladies met at the home of Mrs. Robert Beadell. The evening coffee included a dessert prepared by the hostess. In addition to the honoree Mrs. Beadell's guest list included Mrs. Jack O'Shea, Mrs. Dale Adams, Mrs. Marion Clark, Mrs. Richard Croissant, Mrs. Ross Vaughn, Mrs. Robert McKee, and Mrs. Sam Presciotta.

The Matters will be moving to Japan where Capt. Matter has been assigned new duties.

Bridge will be on the agenda at the John Kircher home tomorrow night. Eight guests will participate in the evening activities and they are Mrs. Allen Bennett, Mrs. Orpha Harris, Mrs. Lloyd Jackson, Miss Nellye Knights, Mrs. James Looker, Mrs. Gale Larson, Mrs. Bill Moon and Mrs. George Reichenbach.

We might say entertaining was at a peak this past week in Kimberly Heights. Here is another gay and original party to mention.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Abbott were a host couple at their home last Thursday evening when they entertained their monthly square-dancing club. The party's theme, "The Mad Hatters Tea", will give you a clue as to what went on. The guests all came in original styled hats and prizes were given to the man and the woman appearing in the most original hat. In the midst of all the hat admiration there were several rounds of square dancing. The guest list for this party included Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Squire, co-host and hostess. Mr. and Mrs. Roland Badberg, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Berck, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Colbert, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Eikleberry, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Levinson, Mr. and Mrs. Del Pinkerton, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Weaver Jr.

Mrs. Verneeta London of Fairbury

drove to Lincoln last Friday with Mrs. Elva Hayden. The two spent the weekend visiting with Mr. and Mrs. John Olson, who are Mrs. London's son-in-law and daughter.

NORTHEAST HEIGHTS

We have received word that Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Seiman are the proud parents of a new son born March 9 at Bryan Memorial Hospital. Congratulations to the Seimans and we will be anxious to hear what they will name their young son.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dalby greeted their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Clair, when they arrived in Lincoln on Sunday for a week's visit. Mr. Clair is having Spring break from Colorado State University where he is working towards his Master's degree. Mrs. Clair is the former Joyce Dalby.

wedding is planned

Announcement is being made of the betrothal of Miss Nancy Schwanebeck of Lincoln, daughter of Mrs. Herbert Schanebeck of Plainview, and the late Mr. Schanebeck, to A.2C John R. Hornbeck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hornbeck of Orlando, Fla.

Plans are being made for a fall wedding. Miss Schwanebeck's fiancé is stationed at the Lincoln Air Force Base.

Annual

Mrs. Bill White entertained the members of Chapter FX, PEO, recently when the group elected Mrs. F. M. Tuttle president for the coming year.

Other officers will be Mrs. John Reigert, Jr., vice president; Mrs. Marie Burch, recording secretary; Mrs. H. G. Reinmuth, corresponding secretary; Mrs. L. E. Boswell, treasurer; Mrs. Elizabeth Rodgers, chaplain; and Mrs. Alfred Thompson, guard.

Mrs. M. R. Willis was re-elected president of Chapter BY, PEO, at the group's recent meeting. Also re-elected were Mrs. W. C. Hastings, vice president, and Mrs. J. Ford Forsyth, guard.

New officers named are Mrs. F. A. Miller, recording secretary; Mrs. M. U. Henderson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. E. H. Unvert, treasurer; and Mrs. Jason Webster, chaplain.

We understand that news of Mrs. Ager's late week arrival has been the incentive for her many Lincoln friends to start the courtesy ball rolling. At the moment there are numerous informal parties planned.

Apropos of courtesies—We've added another party to the already long list of pre-nuptial affairs for Miss Katherine Lilly and Dale L. Gibbs.

keep suburban activity at high peak

From a look at all of the activity in Suburbia this morning and after observing the fair weather existing the last couple of days, we would have you know that "complaining" is going out of style.

With the exit of complaining enters a wish—may bad weather become completely out-moded, at least until next winter.

Warmer weather is being anticipated with delight among families. Already we have heard of plans for picnics, outdoor barbecuing, and other such activities.

KIMBERLY HEIGHTS

Farewells were said to Mrs. William Matter last Friday evening when eight neighborhood ladies met at the home of Mrs. Robert Beadell. The evening coffee included a dessert prepared by the hostess. In addition to the honoree Mrs. Beadell's guest list included Mrs. Jack O'Shea, Mrs. Dale Adams, Mrs. Marion Clark, Mrs. Richard Croissant, Mrs. Ross Vaughn, Mrs. Robert McKee, and Mrs. Sam Presciotta.

The Matters will be moving to Japan where Capt. Matter has been assigned new duties.

Bridge will be on the agenda at the John Kircher home tomorrow night. Eight guests will participate in the evening activities and they are Mrs. Allen Bennett, Mrs. Orpha Harris, Mrs. Lloyd Jackson, Miss Nellye Knights, Mrs. James Looker, Mrs. Gale Larson, Mrs. Bill Moon and Mrs. George Reichenbach.

We might say entertaining was at a peak this past week in Kimberly Heights. Here is another gay and original party to mention.

wedding is planned

Announcement is being made of the betrothal of Miss Nancy Schwanebeck of Lincoln, daughter of Mrs. Herbert Schanebeck of Plainview, and the late Mr. Schanebeck, to A.C. John R. Hornbeck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hornbeck of Orlando, Fla.

Plans are being made for a fall wedding. Miss Schwanebeck's fiancé is stationed at the Lincoln Air Force Base.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Abbott were a host couple at their home last Thursday evening when they entertained their monthly square-dancing club. The party's theme, "The Mad Hatters Tea", will give you a clue as to what went on. The guests all came in original styled hats and prizes were given to the man and the woman appearing in the most original hat. In the midst of all the hat admiration there were several rounds of square dancing. The guest list for this party included Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Squire, co-host and hostess. Mr. and Mrs. Roland Badberg, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Berck, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Colbert, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Eikleberry, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Levinson, Mr. and Mrs. Del Pinkerton, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Weaver Jr.

Mrs. Verneeta London of Fairbury

drove to Lincoln last Friday with Mrs. Elva Hayden. The two spent the weekend visiting with Mr. and Mrs. John Olson, who are Mrs. London's son-in-law and daughter.

NORTHEAST HEIGHTS

We have received word that Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Seiman are the proud parents of a new son born March 9 at Bryan Memorial Hospital. Congratulations to the Seimans and we will be anxious to hear what they will name their young son.

SERVE

your guests a delicious dessert

Some desserts carry their own party gaiety. Chilled Butter Creme Prune Cake is one. Lavish and rich, it's sumptuous to look at, inviting to serve . . . a dream dessert for a party, to celebrate a great family event, to bring out for dessert-and-coffee occasions.

In actual fact, though, its elements are simple, and the cake requires no baking. Split ladyfingers, sprinkled with prune juice and rum flavoring, form the slim cake layers. The deep filling between layers is of butter, sugar and egg yolks beaten to a rich velvety creme, at which point chopped prunes are stirred in.

Layer by layer you build up the cake in a loaf pan. Then chill or freeze. To serve, cut in handsomely thick slices. The smooth, chilled butter creme filling offers the tart-sweet, heady wine tang of prunes. The flavor of rum permeates the cake. The whole affair is a blended, firmed up, lush confection of a cake-dessert. Blissful eating the kind that sets a gay seal on any party.

1/2 cup butter
1 1/4 cups confectioners sugar
4 egg yolks
1 cup plumped* chopped prunes
2 dozen ladyfingers
3 tablespoons prune juice (from plumped prunes)
1 tablespoon rum flavoring
4-6 plumped prunes.
Whipped cream
Citron
Cream butter; beat in sugar until mixture is light and fluffy. Add egg yolks. Continue beating until soft and light. Stir in chopped prunes. Line a loaf pan 9"x5"x2 1/2" with wax paper. Cover bottom of pan with a layer of split ladyfingers. Sprinkle with combined prune juice and flavoring. Add a layer of creamy prune mixture. Repeat procedure, ending with a layer of ladyfingers. Press down evenly and chill overnight, or freeze 5 to 6 hours. Garnish with whole prunes, whipped cream, and bits of citron. Makes 8-8 servings.
*To plump—simply soak prunes overnight, 1 quart water to 1 pound prunes.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I play basketball for our high school and so far we've had a very good season. My problem is my father. He never misses a game. He used to play basketball himself, and I guess he was pretty good. My father says the coach doesn't know what he is doing. So my father tells me to do one thing and my coach tells me to do another. I know I should do what my coach tells me to do, but you don't know my father. Nobody can tell him anything. Who should I listen to? Don't print my name or my father will kill me. for sure.

DEAR "X": Listen to your father, but do what your coach wants you to do. Tell your father that it's teamwork that counts in basketball, and since all the other boys take their instructions from the coach you must, too, or you'll be letting the team down.

DEAR ABBY: I know it's perfectly all right to remind children to keep their feet off the furniture, but how about adults who should know better? I have one friend in particular who puts her feet up on my polished wood coffee table. She even sits with one foot tucked underneath her like a teen-ager girl, and she says my sofa cushions with her dirty shoes. My husband says I should let it go as it's not nice to correct guests, especially this one because she has a very sensitive nature. She just burns me up—I still think I should tell her. Who's right?

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE
DEAR ABBY: High blood pressure (years) is more serious than a sensitive nature (berg), and I think you should tell her—in a gentle way, of course.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a secretary who sits and thinks up gifts for all the employees to give the boss? His birthday is coming up soon and she wants all of us to pitch in and buy him 100 pairs of stretch socks so she can hang them all upon a clothesline in his office and surprise him! No one objects to the cost; it's the stupid idea that annoys us. I say if she wants to give the boss socks for his birthday, she should go ahead and do it. But why involve the rest of us? We would like your opinion of this.

ONE OF MANY

DEAR ONE: If you disapprove of the choice of gift, ask the secretary who dreamed up the idea to count you out. Socks are a rather intimate gift for employees to give their employer and I don't blame you for not wanting to put your foot in it.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "LIKES UNIFORMS" that she shouldn't feel bad. The same thing happened to me. I accepted an engagement ring from a young lieutenant in the AIR FORCE. Then he came back to visit me in his civvies, and I couldn't stand him. I soon realized that it was his uniform that got me, so I gave him his ring back.

Opening lead—jack of hearts.

Declarer's first consideration is the fulfillment of his contract. Extra tricks beyond the contract have some value in the scoring, but they are a minor consideration where the safety of the contract is at stake.

This basic principle has given birth to an entire family of plays known as safety plays. They enable a declarer to meet his prime obligation, which is to secure in the safest manner possible the number of tricks he has contracted to take.

One outstanding feature of many safety plays is declarer's willingness to sacrifice a trick in order to increase his chance of fulfilling the contract. The accompanying hand illustrates the point. South has very little chance of making the hand unless he can bring home the club suit. He needs four club tricks to assure the contract. Three will not do the job because the opponents, in the meantime, will take two clubs and at least three hearts to defeat him one trick.

The best way of trying to assure four club tricks is to win the jack of hearts with the king and play a club to the ace. As it happens, the jack falls and the rest of the play is quite simple.

But suppose South wins the heart lead and plays a club to the queen. East takes the king and returns a heart to the ace. Declarer crosses to his hand with a diamond and plays another club.

West follows low and South is now faced with a difficult guess. He must decide whether East was originally dealt the K-J alone or the singleton king. He may guess right, but just as often he will guess wrong.

This guess situation is of South's own making. The ace play on the first round guarantees the contract, if the contract can be made. The queen play carries no such assurance. It may gain a 30-point trick from time to time, but it will lose the contract an alarming number of times.

Two Donkeys Named Charley O

Kansas City, Mo.—Sudden thoughts while wondering if Kansas City can stand two donkeys named Charley O....

Currently in training here for the coming baseball season is the Kansas City A's newest mascot, a mule named Charley O for Charles O. Finley, owner of the club.

Charley O was donated to Finley by Gov. Warren T. Hearnes of Missouri and is being trained at a riding stable here to bow when introduced, to nod yes and to shake its head no.

Could be Finley plans to send the mule to the next owners' meeting since all they've done in the past 50 years is nod yes and shake their heads no.

Now if he can just teach the mule to hit home runs, steal bases and play shortstop, he could have a sixth place contender.

Charlie, You Better Get Going

Speaking of Charlies, this is where Nebraska's Charlie Greene was beaten in the prelims of the 60-yard dash in the Big Eight indoor meet three weeks ago.

The story was not told at the time because of a fear that it would be branded sour grapes but an NU official swears it's a true story.

In the race, Greene was beaten by Oklahoma's Jim Jackson who ran a record .06.0 after a questionable start. When Greene returned to the starting blocks after the race, the starter asked him about the start.

Charlie replied, "Well, I don't want to complain but I looked up and saw this guy (Jackson) going down the track and I said to myself, 'Charlie Green, you better start running.' So I left the starting blocks, then I heard the gun go off."

Greene finished just a step behind Jackson's record time.

Wants Tournament Back

The following letter from Lt. Col. Jean A. Wolf, hospital legal officer at the William Beaumont General Hospital in El Paso, Tex., was received before the decision was made Saturday to leave the Class A portion of the Nebraska High School Basketball Tournament in Omaha another year.

"I have been out of town for some 25 years but was delighted when I read Northeast was playing Creighton Prep in the state tourney as in 1936 our Jackson team played them in the finals," Wolf writes. "We lost 22-24 for our only loss of the year."

"I'm writing for two reasons — one, to urge return of the tourney where it belongs and the second, to point out a record made by Ralph Beechner, our Jackson High coach that I venture has not been duplicated."

"We won all our football games, being unscathed on, and all our basketball games with Harry Pitcathler, Don Fitz, Bus Knight, Harold Owens and myself. Beech was undoubtedly the finest coach in the state."

"Again, get our tourney back so my next visit from El Paso will allow me to enjoy the tourney where tradition demands it be," he concludes.

It would appear that the Board of Control acted a little hastily in their decision to play Class A in Omaha again. It is extremely doubtful that they had time to hear opinions from many people connected with the tournament.

U.S. Open Deadline May 5

The USGA points out that the deadline for entries in the U.S. Open to be held this year at the Belle River Country Club in St. Louis is May 5.

Local qualifying rounds in the Nebraska section will be played over 36 holes at the Lincoln Country Club May 24. The number of Lincoln entrants who will advance to sectional qualifying will be determined by the number of golfers playing in the Lincoln field.

The sectional qualifying will decide the final entrants for the U.S. Open scheduled for June 17-20.

Swim Tickets Going Fast

Iowa State business manager C. Kim Tidd warns swimming fans who wish to see the NCAA championships being held in Ames March 25-27 that tickets are going fast.

The Friday and Saturday night finals are already sold out and only 156 tickets remain for the Saturday afternoon prelims. Tidd reports that 311 tickets also remain for the Thursday night finals and adequate tickets also remain for the Thursday and Friday afternoon preliminaries.

"When we say sold out, that is exactly what we mean," Tidd warns. "There are absolutely no tickets left for those sessions."

Dr. Strangeglove, Sox' Arsenal Gone From Boston

Second of a Series
Scottsdale, Ariz. (AP) — Dr. Strangeglove is gone from Boston, but so is his atomic arsenal.

And there's little doubt that the Red Sox' hopes for rising from their eight-place finish in the American League last season have been placed on a still-unsettled pitching situation that may be only partly solved with the addition of Dennis Bennett.

That is part of the dilemma facing new Manager Billy Herman.

The Red Sox moved to correct their main deficiency by trading Dick Stuart, the Dr. Strangeglove who guarded first base last year, to Philadelphia for the promising Bennett. It is no secret that the Boston brass hopes Bennett can become the first winning left-hander the Red Sox have had since Mel Parnell retired nine years ago.

Herman freely admits that the Red Sox' biggest problem is pitching.

The big guy of the staff, of course, is 6-foot-5, 250-pound Dick Radatz, the behemoth of a relief pitcher who posted a 16-9 record with a 2.29 earned run average last season.

Then there's Bill Monbouquette, who won 20 games in 1963 but fell to 13-14 last season.

After that there's a series of names — Earl Wilson, who has a no-hitter to his credit but only a so-so 11-12 record last season; Dave Morehead and Jerry Stephenson.

While Bennett figures to help, the loss of Stuart deprives the Red Sox of some heavy hitting. Stuart hit .279 with 33 homers and 114 runs batted in last season and it's doubtful if there's any one on the club who can match that.

The chief candidates would have to be last year's rookie sensation, Tony Conigliaro; 1963 batting champion Carl Yastrzemski, and second baseman Felix Mantilla, for whom Fenway Park seems tailored.

Conigliaro, who played in only 111 games last season because of hand and arm injuries, proved the most pleasant surprise by batting .290 and hitting 24 homers.

Yastrzemski, on the other hand, was a large disappointment. Held back by a weight problem at the beginning of the season, he fell to .289 last season after winning the batting title with a .321 mark the year before.

Yastrzemski, however, is back at his normal 180-pound playing weight and is expected to shift from center back to left field, with Conigliaro in right. Gary Geiger, whose career has been slowed by illness, is tapped for center field duty along with Lenny Green.

Mantilla blossomed into a legitimate slugger last year with the Red Sox, slamming 30 homers and driving in 64 runs while hitting .289. With Ed Bressoud, .293, at short, the double play combination hits as well as any in the league.

Frank Malzone, at 34 the oldest player on the team, remains at third base, still filling Stuart's position at first base might be a problem.

Currently battling for the job are Tony Horton, who hit .222 with the Red Sox as a rookie last season, and rookie Bob Guindon, up from Seattle. Veteran Lee Thomas stands by and could either play there or in the outfield if someone falters.

Scores TKO In Opening Round . . . OF NATIONAL GG MEET

Kansas City, Mo.—Tony Drake, 135-pound high school senior from Sioux City, Iowa, led Nebraska's delegation of Golden Glovers through the four lighter weights in the opening rounds of the National Golden Gloves Tournament here Monday night.

The Nebraska team will send Drake and flyweight Lance Kress into Wednesday's quarterfinals and four more Cornhusker State Representatives will go into the ring tonight.

Each of the four lighter weights fought two fights Monday night and the welterweights through heavyweights will compete twice tonight.

The Omaha team is tied for fifth with Billings, Mont., Roswell, N.M., St. Louis and Buffalo, N.Y., with four points each after Monday night. Fort Worth is the team leader with seven, followed by Kansas City and Los Angeles with six each and Minneapolis with five.

Drake scored a technical knockout win over a two-time national champion, Pete Torres of Denver, in his first fight, then carried the fight to Detroit's Willie Richardson to gain a unanimous decision in his second encounter.

Drake opened a cut on the side of Torres' nose with a right cross in the first round and doctors stopped the bout after checking the cut between rounds.

Torres had won two titles in Chicago and represented that city in the inter-city matches between New York and Chicago. He failed to qualify for the National tournament a year ago.

The Denver fighter was making his last Golden Gloves appearance, having reached the maximum age limit of 26. Flyweight Lance Kress is Nebraska's other fighter in the quarter finals, having gained a unanimous decision over Danny Blythe of Jackson Tenn.

Nebraska's Larry Lurz, a bantamweight out of Rapid City, S.D., dethroned Joe Ceresa of Toledo, Ohio, in his first round bout, then lost a decision to Los Angeles' Al Robinson in the second round match.

"We certainly weren't disappointed in Lurz," Omaha coach Jack Fickler noted. "He fought a boy with a lot of experience from a big city."

"But despite this Lurz carried the fight to him. He just didn't have enough experi-

Milwaukee (AP) — Newly crowned NCAA champion Charlie Greene of Nebraska equalled the meet record by winning the 50-yard dash in 5.2 seconds Monday night in the 14th annual Journal Games, designated as the U.S. Track and Field Federation Indoor Championships for the third straight year.

Green hit the tape one-half stride ahead of Trenton Jackson of Illinois. Craig Wallace, the Kentucky State freshman flash, was third followed by Steve Goldston of Iowa.

Midshipman C. P. Gray of Navy equalled the USTFF record of 6.1 seconds in capturing the 50-yard high hurdles. Dave Dick of Air Force Academy toppled a timber and settled for second.

Greene's Husker teammate, Dick Strand, finished first in his qualifying heat of the 600-yard run with a 1:12.1 clocking.

Scores TKO In Opening Round

... OF NATIONAL GG MEET

Kansas City, Mo.—Tony Drake, 135-pound high school senior from Sioux City, Iowa, led Nebraska's delegation of Golden Gloves through the four lighter weights in the opening rounds of the National Golden Gloves Tournament here Monday night.

The Nebraska team will send Drake and flyweight Lance Kress into Wednesday's quarterfinals and four more Cornhusker State Representatives will go into the ring tonight.

Each of the four lighter weights fought two fights Monday night and the welterweights through heavyweights will compete twice tonight.

The Omaha team is tied for fifth with Billings, Mont., Roswell, N.M., St. Louis and Buffalo N.Y., with four points each after Monday night. Fort Worth is the team leader with seven, followed by Kansas City and Los Angeles with six each and Minneapolis with five.

Torres had won two titles in Chicago and represented that city in the inter-city matches between New York and Chicago. He failed to qualify for the National tournament a year ago.

The Denver fighter was making his last Golden Gloves appearance, having reached the maximum age limit of 26.

Flyweight Lance Kress is Nebraska's other fighter in the quarter finals, having gained a unanimous decision over Danny Blythe of Jackson Tenn.

Kress dropped Blythe to the canvas with a left hook in the third round en route to the decision. Kress drew a bye in the first round pairings to gain the shot at Blythe.

Nebraska's Larry Lurz, a bantamweight out of Rapid City, S.D., decisioned Joe Ceresa of Toledo, Ohio, in his first round bout, then lost a decision to Los Angeles' Al Robinson in the second round match.

"We certainly weren't disappointed in Lurz," Omaha coach Jack Fickler noted. "He fought a boy with a lot of experience from a big city. "But despite this Lurz carried the fight to him. He just didn't have enough experience." Lurz is only 17 years old and only in his second year of Golden Gloves boxing.

Only one disappointment hit the Omaha team, Fickler pointed out.

"I was a little disappointed in the Merrick decision," he observed. Featherweight Nate Merrick lost a split decision to Donald Parker of Kansas City.

The fight was one of the few that drew boos from the crowd that watched action in three rings Monday night.

Merrick pressed Parker, an inmate at the Missouri Intermediate Security Penitentiary in Moberly, Mo., throughout the fight, but caught some heavy bombs from the Kansas City representative.

Welterweight Percy Tittsworth, middleweight Paul Fisher, light-heavyweight Ron Oneather and heavy Jim Blake will go into the ring tonight.

Fisher is a substitute for Hal Mitchell, the Offutt airman who qualified in the Southeast District tournament at Lincoln. Mitchell was scratched from the team when the Air Force refused to let him fight without head gear, a device that is banned by the National Golden Gloves Association.

Uni, Beavers Top Ratings

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

University High, ranked No. 1 in the pre-tourney chart, and Beaver Crossing, unranked before tourney play, head the Class C and D fields in the final Nebraska Prep Ratings.

The tourney champions each closed in impressive fashion.

Dale Snook's Tutors whipped second-ranked Hebron third-ranked Wood River eighth-ranked Sterling and tenth-ranked Seward Concordia in their march to the title.

The Beavers also dumped four members of the top ten in their title drive. Their victims were second-ranked Odell, third-ranked Elgin St. Boniface, fifth-ranked Guide Rock and sixth-ranked Marquette.

Only non-tourney teams cracking the top ten in the Class C ranks are Franklin, Sterling and Henderson. Franklin's only loss was a three-point setback to Hebron in the district finals.

Hildreth, which topped the Class D chart at the end of the regular season, finishes in fourth place in the final list. The Greyhounds were knocked out of tourney contention by Loomis, a team they had whipped twice during regular season play.

Marquette, ranked No. 2 heading into the tourneys, closed at the No. 6 spot after being ousted by Beaver Crossing.

Wichita Tutor Doesn't Like Rookie Tag

... 'BEEN THROUGH ENOUGH TO MAKE ANYONE A VETERAN'

Wichita, Kan. (P)—Gary Thompson is completing his first full season as a head coach, but he doesn't consider himself a freshman and definitely does not like the tag, rookie.

"I figure I've been through enough this season to make anyone a veteran," said the coach of the Wichita Shockers basketball team. "And I can't be a rookie, anyhow. This has been two seasons; two separate, distinct seasons."

There's plenty of evidence to support the argument. Consider, he started the season with an All-America in Dave Stallworth, a veteran, 6-foot-10 center in Nate Bowman, all around strength and a good bench. He went through the first month and a half of the season with a 12-2 record and was at or near the top of the national rankings all the way.

Sixteen games into the schedule things changed. One season ended and another began. Suddenly he had no All-America, no 6-foot-10 center, no bench, no ranking and, really, not much of anything but a bunch of kids with a lot of desire.

So they went on and won the Missouri Valley Conference title and the NCAA Midwest Regional championship anyhow and now head into the national semi-finals with a 21-7 over-all record.

"I can't say too much about our second-semester team," the stock, dark-haired coach said. "We certainly don't have the talent or depth we had at the start of the season."

The division of two seasons was triggered by two factors. Stallworth's eligibility expired at the end of the first semester, and Bowman became ineligible through scholastic difficulties. With those two out, Thompson had to deplete his bench to fill the starting roles.

"Now we have five guards out there," he said. The tallest starter is 6-5 Dave Leach. The rest range down to 5-10 John Criss. In crucial situations, the starters sometimes go all the way, as they did in the 54-46 victory over Oklahoma State in the regional finals.

The starters are 6-4 Vern Smith and 6-3 sophomore Jamie Thompson at forwards, Leach at center and 6-1 junior Kelly Pete and Criss at guards.

Jamie Thompson was a district surprise. He made his first start after Stallworth and Bowman departed and has averaged almost 19 points a game.

Pete is probably the most complete player in the conference. He is the leading rebounder, led the Midwest tournament in scoring and is an excellent defensive player.

Criss and Smith also excel in the Shockers' full-court press and Leach is the No. 2 scorer on the team.

The big test, Coach Thompson said, came in the Feb. 6 game at St. Louis, the first after the departure of Stallworth and Bowman. Wichita won it 72-64.

"This was the game where the big answers were on the line," he said. "We put a 6-0 Valley mark against the Billikins and came off 7-0. We had our answers. We had to out-hustle and out-think the opposition. Finding out we could do so in that game is, to me, one of the big reasons we went on to win the Valley title."

Thompson played for Ralph Miller for six years at Wichita East High School and Wichita U., then served as his assistant for seven years before moving up to the head coaching job as Miller's successor when Miller went to Iowa.

The Wichita style of play, therefore, still closely resembles the Miller system.

"We still use the pressing defense and fast break," Thompson said, then added with a twinkle, "we do, perhaps, place more emphasis on a controlled offense and delaying tactics."

The latter may have been in reference to the regional tournament victory over Oklahoma

State when the Shockers turned the tables on Henry Iba's team, used the control game Iba made famous and beat the Cowboys at their own specialty.

"We figured every team has a strong facet to their game," Thompson said. "In the case of Oklahoma State it was their sinking man-to-man defense. We try to take that away from them, to nullify their strong point."

"So we went to a control game, made them come out to the ball. That spreads out their defense, does not allow them to help each other out as they like and enabled us to drive through."

By Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Pirates rode a 14-run explosion in the seventh inning to their third straight exhibition baseball victory Monday while the Philadelphia Phillies broke intrippling in two runs in the Dodgers' three-run seventh. Ken Harrelson's two-run homer in the eighth gave Kansas City a 5-4 decision over Detroit in the Athletics' exhibition debut. They had been rained out twice.

Tony Martinez doubled home one run in the 11th inning and relief pitcher Daryl Farnsworth delivered another with a single, lifting Cleveland to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

—EXEMPTIONS INCREASED—

36-Hole Final Round Out Of U.S. Open Plans This Year

New York (P)—The double round on the last day of the U.S. Open golf championship has been eliminated this year, but the double qualifying rounds and double exemptions continue—with increased numbers of exemptions in two categories.

The United States Golf Association, outlining the conditions of the 1965 Open Monday, revealed that the 15 lowest scorers in the 1964 Open, excluding Open champions of the past five years, and the 15 top men on the official PGA money winning list will be exempt from all qualifying.

champions of the past five years—Ken Venturi, Julius Boros, Jack Nicklaus, Gen Littler and Arnold Palmer—1964 U.S. amateur champion Billy Campbell; 1964 PGA champion Bobby Nichols and 1964 British Tpen champion Tony Lema.

Exemptions determined on official PGA money winning will be granted after the last PGA tournament date before the closing date for Open entries. The period covered is one year ending with that tournament.

For the local qualifying rounds, the number of exempt players in those two categories has been increased from 20 to 25.

The championship will be played at the Bellvue Country Club, St. Louis, June 17-20 with a starting field of 150. For the first time, it will be played over four days with one 18-hole round each day.

The USA expects an entry approaching the record of 2,474 set in 1962. Entries close at the USA New York headquarters May 5.

Most of the players will be required to play through the 36-hole local qualifying rounds at 58 locations May 24 and 25. About 20% of the original field then will advance to the sectional qualifying rounds at 13 locations June 7 and 8.

Prize money in the Open has been increased to $125,000 with $25,000 going to the winner. Of this total, $7,800 will be distributed among the first three professionals in each of the 13 sectional qualifying districts.

Players exempt from all qualifying include: Open

Vail, Colo. (P)—Jean Claude

Killy of France raced to victory in the men's giant slalom and Jean Saubert of the United States tied favored Marielle Goitschel of France for first place in the women's event Monday in the American International Ski races.

This was on the basis of unofficial results subject to a two-hour period for protests and a check of gatekeepers.

The French women won the team championship in the three-nation, three-day competition with 62 points to 38 for Austria and 28 for the United States. Although Killy, who also won Sunday's Slalom, took individual honors, the Austrians captured the men's championship with 194 points to 92 for France and 55 for the United States. The team title was based on downhill, slalom and giant slalom results.

Killy sped down the mile-long men's giant slalom trail in 1 minute, 43.41 seconds. Gerhardt Nemning of Austria was second in 1:44.69, Michel Arpin of France third in 1:45.32 and Billy Kidd of the United States fourth in 1:45.66.

The men and women ran the same course, dropping 1,300 feet with 66 gates.

Four men fell in their event and only Sandra Shellworth of the United States took a tumble in the women's race.

Heini Messner, winner of Saturday's downhill, and Franz Digruber, both of Austria, and Gordon Eaton and Ni Orsi of the United States were the men who fell.

Miss Goitschel, winner of Sunday's slalom, started in the No. 1 position Monday and Miss Saubert started No. 2, giving them almost identical course conditions.

Christine Goitschel of France, sister of Marielle, was third in 1:54.26. Traudi Hecher of Austria was next in 1:55.37, followed by her teammate, Christl Haas, in 1:58.10.

Sharp controversy flared around the start of the race. It was a half-hour late in getting started because the French women, including Marielle Goitschel, the No. 1 starter, were not on the course for the scheduled start at 10 a.m., local time.

Stock Market Nipped By Profit Taking

New York (AP)—The stock market was nipped by profit taking Monday as it tried to make its third straight daily rise. Trading was active.

Volume was a husky 6.01 million shares compared with 6.42 million Friday.

The Dow Jones industrial average was made further progress above the 1000 line when selling started in the afternoon, converting gains by some averages to slight losses.

The Dow industrials ended with a loss of 46 at 899.5. One hour before the close of trading, however, the average was up 3.67 at 903.17. It looked as if the market was making a determined drive to surpass the old historic peak of 900.

Not suddenly the mood changed and stocks began to weaken. It was the third time the Dow had been nipped since it first achieved its last Jan. 28, but the last had never been able to make much more than a slight advance.

Of 281 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 578 rose and 535 fell. Nine issues were unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks edged up 3.33 with industrials unchanged, utilities off 1 and utilities off 1.

Calpers numbered 10 to 8 to 5 among the 15 most active stocks, and American Telephone advanced.

The general news background seemed quiet, encouraging. It included a rise in weekly steel production to another new high and a rise in high sales of new cars in early March. But some stock market advisers were reported to have recommended taking some profits.

At the close of the market, some stock advice said on a bullish note.

A few more stocks advanced than declined on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 2.07 million shares compared with 2.35 million on Friday.

High Court Reverses Ban On Movie Depicting Sex

Washington (AP)—The Supreme Court struck another blow Monday at movie censorship, reversing a ban on the showing of a Danish film that depicts sexual intercourse.

But, in a companion decision, the court refused a hearing to a motion picture exhibitor who refused to apply for a state license because, he contends, to do so would violate his constitutional right to free expression.

The first of the high tribunal's two movie censorship decisions was on the Danish film "A Stranger Knecks," found obscene by censors in New York state because it has scenes of sexual intercourse.

Censors Reversed

Trans-Lux Distributing Corp., owner of distribution rights to the film in the United States, asked—and got—the high court to reverse the New York Court of Appeals, which upheld the censors.

Although the Supreme Court did not amplify its decision with a written opinion, it cited a ruling it gave two weeks ago in a Baltimore censorship case. The court at that time insisted that there be these two safeguards before a film is banned: the censor must either issue a license or go to court to restrain the film; prompt final judicial decision must be provided.

The film of a love affair between a young woman and a stranger who knocks at her door.

Two sequences drew the fire of the New York Board of Regents, one of a man and a woman embracing and caressing on a beach, the other of a man and woman in bed.

SIT-IN... demonstrator is hauled from House.

Take Demonstrators Out Of Capitol Building

Washington (AP)—Police carried and dragged 11 singing civil rights sit-in demonstrators from the Capitol Monday night three hours before President Johnson was due to address a joint session of Congress on voting rights legislation.

"We shall not be moved," they sang as they were hustled one by one down the steps from the House. Some, including a white demonstrator in a black homburg, were dragged all the way down when they went limp and wouldn't leave on their own.

The 11 had refused to leave the foyer of the House building after Speaker John W. McCormack, d-Mass., heard their demands to reduce Alabama's 8-member congressional delegation to four members because of alleged voting discrimination against Negroes.

McCormack told them he was a friend of civil rights legislation but when one of the leaders, David Smith, said they were going to stay until there was some action on cutting Alabama's delegation in half, McCormack's voice sharpened.

"Now you're demanding and making this issue an ultimatum and I can't accept that from you or anyone else," he said.

"You are in a state of defiance," he said, "and if you stay here you'll be breaking the law."

Court Won't Speed Up Appeal In Triple Killing

Washington (AP)—The Supreme Court refused Monday to grant a speeded-up hearing of a Justice Department appeal from dismissal by a federal judge of major charges in the killing of three civil rights workers in Mississippi.

U.S. District Judge Harold Cox in Jackson, Miss., dismissed a felony indictment against 17 defendants. He also dismissed three of four counts of a misdemeanor indictment against 14 of the 17 men.

The accusations were in connection with the killings of the three civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss., last June 21. They were Michael Schwerner and Andrew Goodman, both white New York City residents, and James Chaney, Negro from Meridian, Miss. Their bodies were found in an earthen dam 44 days after the killings.

Direct Appeal

After Cox dismissed the major charges, the Justice Department appealed directly to the Supreme Court, asking an expedited hearing of the case. The department suggested that it be scheduled for May 3.

A conference of Supreme Court justices Monday afternoon resulted in an order rejecting the Justice Department hurry-up request, and stating that the defendants should be given the customary time for filing replies to the department appeal.

The Justice Department appeal was filed March 3 and, under usual routine, the defendants now have 30 days to file their answers. After the answers are filed, the Supreme Court will decide whether to grant a hearing in the case.

Objections

Attorneys for the defendants, in briefs filed with the Supreme Court last Wednesday, objected to the Justice Department's plea for quick action.

One reply said that there existed no real need for such haste, and attorneys could not be prepared, without hardship, to argue the cases before the Supreme Court on May 3.

Another reply briefly stated, "If the matter be serious for the government as a national interest case, then certainly it is very important to the defendants to have adequate time and their full day in court."

3 Persons Hurt In Two Crashes

Three persons were injured in two separate automobile accidents Monday evening. All were released after treatment at Bryan Memorial Hospital for bumps, bruises and abrasions.

Two women who were passengers on a Lincoln City bus were injured in a car-bus accident at 41st and St. Paul. Police said a Lincoln City Bus Lines, Inc. bus driven by Louis E. Siefer, 1535 N. 15th, was eastbound on St. Paul and was passing a car eastbound on St. Paul driven by George J. Morrissey, 76, of 3604 St. Paul, when the two vehicles collided.

Vera Dunn, 37, of 7240 Havelock Ave., and Dorothy Bishop, 34, were jostled in the bus and received bumps and bruises.

Donna Lee Sears, 30, of 6025 Baldwin received cuts and abrasions when her vehicle, southbound on 60th, collided with a vehicle eastbound on Madison driven by Mark A. Mullin, 19, of 4945 Walker.

Both vehicles were demolished.

New Bill May Get Filibuster

Washington (AP)—A Southern senator raised Monday night the threat of a filibuster against President Johnson's legislation to guarantee Negro voting rights.

Johnson has not yet sent to Congress the bill he wants passed. But before a joint session he urged the House and Senate to work quickly for enactment—meeting nights and weekends if they must.

"If the President attempts to have Congress define the qualifications of voters," said Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., "I'll not only oppose it but I shall filibuster against it."

Criticism

Ellender said there are enough voting rights laws now on the books.

Johnson's call to Congress also ran into some criticism from House Republican leaders.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the GOP floor leader, said the measure he understands Johnson will recommend could penalize states which do not discriminate against Negroes, and fail to resolve the problem in some that do.

Administration officials have said the measure will erase literacy tests and similar qualifications for voting in states or electoral subdivisions where less than half the voting-age population was registered or cast their ballots last November.

Diverse Comments

These were among the comments of other congressmen: House Speaker John W. McCormack: "It is an accomplishment in the first rank of statesmanship."

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore.: "It was the President's greatest speech. I am confident the Congress will respond promptly and act on his recommendations."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.: "No good purpose can be served by the enactment of new provisions for voting referees or supervisors, when provisions of the present law authorizing the appointment of voting referees have not been used."

ETV Contract Hearing Set For March 23

The State Railway Commission will be asked March 23 to dismiss a complaint against two telephone companies that joined in a contract to build interconnecting facilities for Nebraska's Educational Television (ETV) network.

The complaint was filed by the Hamilton County Telephone Co. of Aurora against Northwestern Bell of Omaha and the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co.

It alleges that Northwestern and LT&T violated anti-trust laws and failed to receive proper authority to build microwave stations to link the proposed seven stations in the ETV network.

The hearing is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. in the commission hearing room at the State Capitol.

Earlier, the commission in a split decision decided that it had jurisdiction over the dispute and agreed to hold a hearing on Hamilton's formal complaint.

In other action, the commission approved the merger of three telephone companies—at Herman, Wilcox and Bancroft—with the Cornhusker State Telephone Co. Inc. of Wisner.

The hearing also is scheduled for 10 a.m. at the State Capitol.

By the Humboldt city hall an application by the Falls City-Lincoln State Lines for a revision in its route. The bus line seeks to delete service to Humboldt, Pawnee and Table Rock, and begin service to Ashburn.

Moved from March 22 to March 23 a commission inquiry into the adequacy of service offered by the Kansas Telephone exchange. The hearing is scheduled for 10 a.m. at the Adams County courthouse in Hasting.

Set for March 23 hearing on a complaint by Northwestern Bell of Omaha against the Consolidated Telephone Co. of Dunning. The hearing is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. at the Statehouse.

High Court Reverses Ban On Movie Depicting Sex

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court struck another blow Monday at movie censorship, reversing a ban on the showing of a Danish film that depicts a sexual intercourse.

But, in a companion decision, the court refused a hearing to a motion pictures exhibitor who refused to apply for a state license because, he contends, to do so would violate his constitutional right to free expression.

The first of the high tribunal's two movie censorship decisions was on the Danish film "A Stranger Knocks," found obscene by censors in New York state because it has scenes of sexual intercourse.

Censors Reversed

Trans-Lux Distributing Corp., owner of distribution rights to the film in the United States, asked—and got—the high court to reverse the New York Court of Appeals, which upheld the censors.

Although the Supreme Court did not affirm its decision with a written opinion, it cited a ruling it gave two weeks ago in a Baltimore censorship case. The court at that time insisted that there be these two safeguards before a film is banned: the censor must either issue a license or go to court to restrain the film; prompt final judicial decision must be provided.

The film of a love affair between a young woman and a stranger who knocks at her door.

Two sequences drew the fire of the New York Board of Regents, one of a man and a woman embracing and caressing on a beach, the other of a man and woman in bed.

The second censorship decision concerned no specific film but simply the refusal of Gate Film Club, a movie exhibitor in New York City, to apply for a state license before showing movies.

This licensing requirement, Gate Theater contended, is an unconstitutional prior restraint on freedom of expression and violation of the federal Constitution.

SIT-IN . . . demonstrator is hauled from House.

Take Demonstrators Out Of Capitol Building

Washington (AP)—Police carried and dragged 11 singing civil rights sit-in demonstrators from the Capitol Monday night three hours before President Johnson was due to address a joint session of Congress.

"We shall not be moved," they sang as they were hustled one by one down the steps from the House. Some, including a white demonstrator in a black homburg, were dragged all the way down when they went limp and wouldn't leave on their own.

The 11 had refused to leave the foyer of the House building after Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., heard their demands to reduce Alabama's 8-member congressional delegation to four members because of alleged voting discrimination against Negroes.

McCormack told them he was a friend of civil rights legislation but when one of the leaders, David Smith, said they were going to stay until there was some action on cutting Alabama's delegation in half, McCormack's voice sharpened.

"Now you're demanding and making this issue an ultimatum and I can't accept that from you or anyone else," he said.

"You are in a state of defiance," he said, "and if you stay here you'll be breaking the law."

Court Won't Speed Up Appeal In Triple Killing

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court refused Monday to grant a speeded-up hearing of a Justice Department appeal from dismissal by a federal judge of major charges in the killing of three civil rights workers in Mississippi.

U.S. District Judge Harold Cox in Jackson, Miss., dismissed a felony indictment against 17 defendants. He also dismissed three of four counts of a misdemeanor indictment against 14 of the 17 men.

The accusations were in connection with the killings of the three civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss., last June 21. They were Michael Schwerner and Andrew Goodman, both white New York City residents, and James Chaney, Negro from Meridian, Miss. Their bodies were found in an earthen dam 44 days after the killings.

Direct Appeal

After Cox dismissed the major charges, the Justice Department appealed directly to the Supreme Court, asking an expedited hearing of the case. The department suggested that it be scheduled for May 3.

A conference of Supreme Court justices Monday afternoon resulted in an order rejecting the Justice Department hurry-up request, and stating that the defendants should be given the customary time for filing replies to the department appeal.

The Justice Department appeal was filed March 3 and, under usual routine, the defendants now have 30 days to file their answers. After the answers are filed, the Supreme Court will decide whether to grant a hearing in the case.

Objections

Attorneys for the defendants, in briefs filed with the Supreme Court last Wednesday, objected to the Justice Department's plea for quick action.

One reply said that there existed no real need for such haste, and attorneys could not be prepared, with out hard-ship, to argue the cases before the Supreme Court on May 3.

Another reply briefly stated, "If the matter be serious for the government as a national interest case, then certainly it is very important to the defendants to have adequate time and their full day in court."

New Bill May Get Filibuster

Washington (AP) — A Southern senator raised Monday night the threat of a filibuster against President Johnson's legislation to guarantee Negro voting rights.

Johnson has not yet sent to Congress the bill he wants passed. But before a joint session he urged the House and Senate to work quickly for enactment — meeting nights and weekends if they must.

"If the President attempts to have Congress define the qualifications of voters," said Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., "I'll not only oppose it but I shall filibuster against it."

Criticism

Ellender said there are enough voting rights laws now on the books.

Johnson's call to Congress also ran into some criticism from House Republican leaders.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the GOP floor leader, said the measure he understands Johnson will recommend could penalize states which do not discriminate against Negroes, and fail to resolve the problem in some that do.

Administration officials have said the measure will erase literacy tests and voting qualifications for similar in states or electoral subdivisions where less than half the voting-age population was registered or cast their ballots last November.

Diverse Comments

These were among the comments of other congressmen:

House Speaker John W. McCormack: "It is an accomplishment in the first rank of statesmanship."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.: "No good purpose can be served by the enactment of new provisions for voting referees or supervisors, when provisions of the present law authorizing the appointment of voting referees have not been used."

ETV Contract Hearing Set For March 23

The State Railway Commission will be asked March 23 to dismiss a complaint against two telephone companies that joined in a contract to build interconnecting facilities for Nebraska's Educational Television (ETV) network.

The complaint was filed by the Hamilton County Telephone Co. of Aurora against Northwestern Bell of Omaha and the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co.

It alleges that Northwestern and LT&T violated anti-trust laws and failed to receive proper authority to build microwave stations to link the ETV network.

The hearing is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. in the commission hearing room at the State Capitol.

Earlier, the commission in a split decision decided that it had jurisdiction over the dispute and agreed to hold a hearing on Hamilton's formal complaint.

In other action, the commission approved the merger of three telephone companies — at Herman, Wilcox and Bancroft — with the Cornhusker State Telephone Co. Inc. of Wisner.

The hearing also was set for March 23 at 10 a.m. in the Hamilton County Telephone Co. of Aurora against Northwestern Bell of Omaha and the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co.

It alleges that Northwestern and LT&T violated anti-trust laws and failed to receive proper authority to build microwave stations to link the ETV network.

The hearing is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. in the commission hearing room at the State Capitol.

Scheduled Ranger Shot Launching Conflicts; Dual Gemini Flight Postponed By One Day

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP)—The orbital flight of astronauts Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom and John W. Young Monday was delayed one day, until March 23, to permit the Ranger 9 moon probe to be launched on March 21.

The schedule rearrangement eliminated a launching conflict which threatened to push the ranger shot off until late April.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said that "scientists have determined that the most desirable lunar target areas can be photographed by Ranger 9 if it is launched between March 21 and 25."

Prime Target

One of the prime targets areas, the crater Alphonsus, will be available March 1. The statement said Alphonsus is a "lunar crater from which gaseous emissions have been detected by earth-based telescopes."

An official said these gaseous emissions indicate possible volcanic activity.

Grissom and Young are to be launched on a three-orbit flight to kick off the ambitious Gemini program. They are to write out the two-seat Gemini spacecraft to prepare it for long-duration flights up to two weeks and missions in which the vehicle will be joined in space with other orbiting satellites.

Favorable Position

Originally Ranger 9 was scheduled for March 19 and the Gemini shot for March 22. March 19 is the first day of a seven-day period in which the moon is favorable position for a launching.

Last week Ranger scientists decided that a launching on March 19 or 20 would take the spacecraft to the same area photographed by Ranger 8. They asked for a March 21 date and it was approved. The shot was scheduled for 4:11 p.m. that day.

However, the Atlantic missile range said that both major launchings could not be supported in that short a time period. It said certain ground equipment, including computers, would not be available for Ranger if Gemini went the following morning.

Detergent Control Bill 'Unnecessary'

The Legislature's Public Health Committee was told Monday that so-called soft or degradable detergents will soon be on the market generally in Nebraska and legislation to control "hard" or non-degradable detergents will not be needed.

The testimony was taken on Rising City Sen. Harold B. Stryker's LB499, which would ban sale or distribution after June 30 of detergents which do not meet certain standards of decomposability. It would place the State Agriculture Department in charge of enforcement.

Sen. Stryker himself asked that the bill be held inactive until late in the session to make certain in the industry gets its new type degradable detergents on the market by June 30 as promised.

Three other bills related to the subject of water pollution were given hearing and two were reported out to the floor.

Approved 8-0 was LB259, which prohibits dumping of refuse, junk, dross, litter, trash, lumber or leavings into or any bayou, drain, ditch or sewer.

Sen. Dale Payne of Papillon, chief introducer, said

NO MARRIED MALE MINORS IF BILL OK'D

Although a male under 21 years of age is a minor under Nebraska law, such youth would no longer be a minor if and when he gets married under a bill approved and sent to the floor Monday by the Legislature's Judiciary Committee.

The measure, LB614, was introduced by Sen. Marvin E. Stromer of Lincoln.

Also reported out was Omaha Sen. Richard F. Proud's LB606, providing for filing evidence of bankruptcy in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the bankrupt person resides.

Held for later action was Lincoln Sen. Hal W. Bauer's LB616, enacting into law a "Nebraska trust deeds act." The act grants trustees of trusts a power of sale and provides the manner in which the power of sale shall be exercised.

LB616 drew no opposition testimony.

2 Appointments OK'd

The Legislature Monday confirmed Gov. Frank Morrison's appointments of Kara Lee Eikleberry to the Advisory Committee to the Departments of Institutions and Welfare, and Lowell W. Fisk to the State Employees retirement Board.

Grand Island City, Rural School Dispute Flares In Unicar

A dispute between the Grand Island city school district and a rural high school district flared before the Legislature's Education Committee Monday.

The clash occurred over a bill that would provide that a school district in an area annexed by a first class city shall remain a separate district unless voters approve the merger.

The committee heard more than an hour of testimony on Sen. Terry Carpenter's LB600, then adjourned without taking action.

Where And How

Representatives of the Northwest High School district which generally surrounds Grand Island on three sides told the committee LB600 is designed to give persons in the rural district the right to determine where and how their children should be educated.

Northwest is a Class VI district, one which operates a high school only, and includes 16 separate elementary school districts.

"Grand Island wants to be allowed to take part of our district," argued Northwest attorney Sam Griminger, "and put it in their district, without giving us a right to vote. We only ask that we be allowed to keep what we've got."

However, Frank Phelps, a member of the Grand Island Board of Education, said the Grand Island school district's "orderly growth would be completely strangled" if LB-600 is passed.

Morton Schroeder, president of the Grand Island Board of Education, said the effect of LB600 would be to "create a divorce in the family" by prohibiting the school district from expanding into areas where the city now is allowed to expand.

Formed in 1963

The committee was told the Northwest district was formed in 1963 by persons who did not want to be merged with the city school district and pay the higher city school mill levy.

The committee also heard testimony but deferred action on companion bills, LB777 and LB778, introduced by Sen. Peter Claussen of Leigh, which would revise school district dissolution laws to permit districts to remain intact.

if it appears they will be needed in the future. Opposing the bills were Nebraska State Education Association, and the Nebraska State School Boards Association.

Detergent Control Bill 'Unnecessary'

The Legislature's Public Health Committee was told Monday that so-called soft or degradable detergents will soon be on the market generally in Nebraska and legislation to control "hard" or non-degradable detergents will not be needed.

The testimony was taken on Rising City Sen. Harold B. Stryker's LB490, which would ban sale or distribution after June 30 of detergents which do not meet certain standards of decomposability. It would place the State Agriculture Department in charge of enforcement.

Sen. Stryker himself asked that the bill be held inactive until late in the session to make certain the industry gets its new type degradable detergents on the market by June 30 as promised.

Three other bills related to the subject of water pollution were given hearing and two were reported out to the floor.

Approved 8-0 was LB259, which prohibits dumping of refuse, junk, dross, litter, trash, lumber or leavings into or any bayou, drain, ditch or sewer.

Sen. Dale Payne of Papillion, chief introducer, said the bill was prompted by Omaha World-Herald publication of a page of pictures showing trash along the banks of Papio Creek near Omaha.

Payne said the bill strengthens and puts penalty provisions into a law which has been on the books since 1929.

In one significant change, the committee took out of the present law a so-called "grandfather clause" which has been exempting from provisions of the present act those communities which were operating dump grounds along waters or waterways prior to 1931. The effect may be to force some communities to relocate their dump grounds, although the present bill was amended to take effect June 30, 1966, thereby allowing adjustment time.

A bill to close a loophole in water pollution control laws, LB311, was advanced 8-0 after amendment.

Present law permits cities or villages to stall the construction of sewage treatment or disposal plants as long as they are levying a special two mill tax to build up a sinking fund for such purposes.

'Contradictory' LB311, principally introduced by Sen. S. H. Brauer Sr. of Norfolk, would have eliminated that provision, which John Samson of Omaha, former chairman of the Water Pollution Control Council, termed a "ridiculous, contradictory" provision.

The committee amended the bill to set Jan. 1, 1968, as the cutoff date for the two mill loophole after Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said that Terrytown near Scottsbluff needs more time to arrange financing for its intended sewer treatment system.

Held for later action was a companion bill, LB312, which gives the Water Pollution Control Council special powers in emergency situations.

Three bills heard last week were also sent to the floor: LB322—Providing for the transfer of state hospital patients to nursing homes or other care homes.

LB323—Authorizing the transfer of children from the Home for Children to boys' and girls training schools, and vice versa.

LB324—Authorizing the Department of Institutions to transfer inmates from one institution to another.

NO MARRIED MALE MINORS IF BILL OK'D

Although a male under 21 years of age is a minor under Nebraska law, such youth would no longer be a minor if and when he gets married under a bill approved and sent to the floor Monday by the Legislature's Judiciary Committee.

The measure, LB614, was introduced by Sen. Marvin E. Stromer of Lincoln.

Also reported out was Omaha Sen. Richard F. Proud's LB606, providing for filing evidence of bankruptcy in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the bankrupt person resides.

Held for later action was Lincoln Sen. Hal W. Bauer's LB616, enacting into law a "Nebraska trust deeds act." The act grants trustees of trusts a power of sale and provides the manner in which the power of sale shall be exercised.

LB616 drew no opposition testimony.

2 Appointments OK'd

The Legislature Monday confirmed Gov. Frank Morrison's appointments of Kara Lee Eikeberry to the Advisory Committee to the Department of Institutions and Welfare, and Lowell W. Fisk to the State Employees Retirement Board.

Grand Island City, Rural School Dispute Flares In Unicam

A dispute between the Grand Island city school district and a rural high school district flared before the Legislature's Education Committee Monday.

The clash occurred over a bill that would provide that a school district in an area annexed by a first class city shall remain a separate district unless voters approve the merger.

The committee heard more than an hour of testimony on Sen. Terry Carpenter's LB600, then adjourned without taking action.

Where And How

Representatives of the Northwest High School district which generally surrounds Grand Island on three sides told the committee LB600 is designed to give persons in the rural district the right to determine where and how their children should be educated.

Northwest is a Class VI district, one which operates a high school only, and includes 16 separate elementary school districts.

"Grand Island wants to be allowed to take part of our district," argued Northwest attorney Sam Grimmer, "and put it in their district, without giving us a right to vote. We only ask that we be allowed to keep what we've got."

However, Frank Phelps, a member of the Grand Island Board of Education, said the Grand Island school district's "orderly growth would be completely strangled" if LB-600 is passed.

Morton Schroeder, president of the Grand Island Board of Education, said the effect of LB600 would be to "create a divorce in the family" by prohibiting the school district from expanding into areas where the city now is allowed to expand.

Opposing the bills were the Nebraska State Education Association, and the Nebraska State School Boards Association.
